NEW YORK HARBOR TIE-UP MORE COMPLETE

Three More Ferry Lines Stop---Hudson Tubes Congested---Mayor and Labor Department Seeking Solution.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 5.—The tie-up of the port, resulting from the strike of 16,000 marine workers, which went into effect yesterday, was more complete today and congestion was reported at most of the local docks.

Three additional ferry lines were stopped as the result of the walkout of their crews and extra trains had to be operated in the Hudson tubes in order to handle the great crowds of commuters.

Municipal ferries were pressed into service to convey the thousands of ship workers on Shooter's and Staten islands.

Practically every boat of the various towing companies lay idle in the harbor with only an occasional tug, manned by strike-breakers, in service.

Efforts to stop the operation of government boats engaged at the big Bush terminal were begun by strike leaders today who telegraphed to Washington, charging that these vessels were violating the order of the United States Shipping Board by engaging in private work.

Mayor Hylan, who returned to the city because of the strike, is expected to take some action in the situation today. A movement also is on foot to bring about mediation by officials of the department of labor.

Representatives of the Boat Owners and Union leaders declared again today they were in the fight "until the finish."

NEWEST GREAT PICTURE.

"Hearts of the World" Announced at Kingston Opera House.

D. W. Griffith's great production, "Hearts of the World," proclaimed the masterpiece of this genius of the motion picture, will be the attraction at the Kingston Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday, with matinees daily. From all accounts this latest of the Griffith super pictures far excels in point of drama and spectacle both his "Intolerance" and "The Birth of a Nation," two of the greatest productions in the history of entertainment. The fact that "Hearts of the World" required more than eighteen months in the making indicates that Mr. Griffith has prepared an unusually interesting and absorbing story. "Hearts of the World" is not a war play, but a simple love story amid the picturesque villages of romantic France, relating the every day life. It is true that the recent world war is shown in all its many phases, but this part of the story is reserved for the last and is made merely a background for the romantic and appealing story.

Mr. Griffith's production is one of great historic value for not only does he show such world figures as David Lloyd George, former Premier Viviani Winston Churchill, General Joffre, the British House of Parliament and the French Cabinet in session, but he brings every important event of the war in bold relief and accurate reproduction.

R. R. MEN LAID OFF

Railroads Reducing Force Owing To Freight Shortage.

A shortage of freight traffic over the O. & W. railroad has resulted in the demotion of ten conductors and the laying off of nearly 40 trainmen, it was announced Tuesday afternoon from the offices of Division Superintendent W. D McQueen in Middletown.

From Oneonta comes rumors of sizeable reductions in the D. & H. railroad forces in that city due to slump in business.

To Repeat C. S. Clay Minstrel.

The largest crowd that ever crowded Pythian Hall was in attendance at the C. S. Clay minstrels last night and long before the starting time of the show there were over one hundred turned away. The show in itself was one of the best black face entertainments ever put on for the public of this city and the dancing that followed concluded the evening's fun to the utmost. Owing to disappointment suffered by many ticket purchasers in not being able to witness the show last night the lodgemen will repeat it for their benefit on Tuesday evening, March 18th and the ticket holders will then be admitted. Tickets are now on sale for this next show and everyone will be assured a seat as a limited amount will be placed on sale for the duplication of the performance.

Dr. Chase's Long and Varied Service

Since Dr. P. N. Chase retired from the active ministry and has lived in this city he has preached in fourteen different churches in Kingston, and in about eighty different churches in all. Recently he was called to a home to baptize a baby, and was surprised to find that he had married the parents not quite, but the grand parents also.

KEENEY OPENING A MUSICAL TREAT

To those who love music, there is a particular attraction at the Red Cross benefit Friday night when Keeney's Theater opens its doors to the public.

The $10,000 organ is there. Not a music lover in Kingston but is eager to hear it, and under the hands of a true musician it will be shown at its best. Mr. Dodge will be at the keyboard and he will play a group of three varied compositions which he has chosen particularly to demonstrate the tonal quality of the instrument. This in itself is a drawing card for Friday evening. The applause which may not be accorded to Mr. Dodge in a church will on this occasion testify to the Kingston people's appreciation of him as an organist of unusual ability.

In addition Miss Natalie Jacus will sing the Aria from the first act of "La Boheme," accompanied by Mr. Dodge on the organ. William Searles, who is a favorite in Kingston, will sing two numbers, "She Alone Charmeth my Sadness," from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," and "The Horn" by Fiegler.

The musical part of the program is without doubt of great interest.

The advertisement in another part of The Freeman will particularize in regard to the pictures for the evening. The two powerful Simplex machines which will project these films will throw so clear-cut a picture on the screen as will be a revelation to people who are not accustomed to the movies shown in the larger cities.

The performance Friday night begins at 8 o'clock.

GREAT METHODIST RALLY

At St. James's Church Sunday Evening.

W. N. Searles, campaign director of the Kingston district, has completed arrangements for a great union service Sunday evening. The Rev. Dr. B. B. Corban, the well known Indian missionary, will deliver the address and illustrate the same with interesting pictures. Another special feature of the service will be singing by Mr. Searles. Among the selections to be rendered are "Fulfillment" from Maunder's "Song of Thanksgiving," and "Charity" by Faure. This is an unusual privilege for the Methodists of Kingston, Port Ewen and South Rondout, and it is hoped that not one will fail to attend the service who can possibly attend. Rev. T. H Baragwanath, pastor of the church, will have the service in charge.

NEW SHIRT FACTORY

Will Open On Lower Broadway—To Employ 45 Girls.

Through error The Freeman stated Tuesday that the factory of Halpel & Friedman on West Union street, was removing to the Kennedy Block on lower Broadway which was untrue. J. Kreppel, manager of the factory has enerted into a partnership with Mr. Streifer and will open a new shirt factory in the Kennedy Block under the name of the Kreppel & Streifer Manufacturing Company. They expect to employ about 45 girls. The rooms they occupy were formerly occupied by the Beacon factory.

Famous Pom Comes Here.

Mrs. A. Marie Lyon has sold to Mrs. Louise M. Klock of Kingston, N. Y., the wonderful puppy, Skylark's Tiny Black Boy. He annexed both specials for best puppy and best Pom at the Long Island match on February 7th, when he was only three months old. This youngster should be heard from and no doubt will go to the top.—New York Dog Journal.

Mobilization Meeting at Y. M. C. A.

All workers, whether the sixteen men or the ninety-six boys, who are to take part in the big drive to secure 200 additional members for the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A., are reminded that they must be present and on time at the mobilization meeting at the "Y" tomorrow, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, sharp.

No West Shore Freight.

Owing to the big harbor strike in New York city no freight has been received at the West Shore freight station here from New York since Sunday night. It is not known when any freight will come through.

Mann's Gasoline Tank.

Alderman James Purvis, the contractor, is placing an 800 gallon gasoline tank under the sidewalk in front of Alderman Ralph Mann's place of business on the Strand.

COURT DISMISSES KRSTOVIC COMPLAINT

On Grounds of No Proof Kline Was Van Buren Agent as Alleged—Other Cases in Supreme Court—Adjourned to March 10.

In the trial for Tripo Krstovic vs. C. H. Van Buren and ano., in supreme court John D. Kline was on the witness stand Tuesday afternoon when court reconvened at 2 o'clock and was examined for some time. C. H. Van Buren, of defendants, was next called by plaintiff and testified as to his dealings with Kline. In order to allow Marcus Heim, treasurer of the N. Y. Consolidated Stock Exchange, to return to New York, Mr. Van Buren stepped from the witness chair, and Mr. Heim was called for defense. He gave a general explanation of dealing by brokers with the exchange and the distinction between correspondent and branch office.

Louis Beeres, cashier of the First National Bank, of Kingston, was called and testified C. H. Van Buren & Co. did not have any deposits with that bank.

Mr. Van Buren was recalled and was on the stand when court took a recess until 10 a. m. Wednesday.

At the opening of court this morning No. 110 was dismissed on its merits, there being no appearance on the part of plaintiff, on motion of A. J. Cook, who represented Rosendale, Hessberg, Dugan and Haines, attorneys for defense, of Albany. This was an action for alleged negligence.

The trial of No. 36, Krstovic vs. C. H. Van Buren and ano., was resumed, Mr. Van Buren on the stand. His testimony was to the effect that Kline was not his agent nor have a branch office for him and denied any knowledge of who Kline's customers were. Testified a correspondent was a man conducting business, on his own account and at own risk and sending his business to others to transact. A branch office is one whose manager and employes are engaged by the main house, which sends out its own notices, pays the rent and help. Various letters between Mr. Kline and Mr. Van Buren in relation to transactions were read into evidence and admitted relvising with Mr. Kline.

Plaintiff rested at 10:40.

Elmer E. Eastmead was then called by defence. Testified as to having received a power of attorney from J. D. Kline to conduct the business on June 13, 1918. A number of telegrams were introduced and read that were sent to Mr. Van Buren.

The testimony of Irving Merwin, taken by George F. Kaufman, as referee, was read to the jury and defense closed its testimony.

On motion of Judge Clearwater for a dismissal of the complaint on the ground that the allegations in the complaint that John D. Kline was agent for C. H. Van Buren and others, defendants in the transactions with plaintiff, Krstovic, were not proven. Judge Rudd so ordered and the case was dismissed.

A day calendar for Monday was then made up as follows: No. 45, 78, 86. The court requested Henry Klein, attorney for plaintiffs in these cases, to let him know if possible when these cases would or could be tried on Monday, so that it would not be neecssary for him to come down for nothing, adding he would come to this city on the following Monday and the cases could then be tried.

The court then adjourned until Monday, March 10th, at 2 p. m.

SERGT. M'MILLAN DEAD.

Former Kingston Boy Dies of Pneumonia in France.

Charles McMillan received word this morning of the death of his nephew, Sergeant Arch McMillan, of pneumonia in France. The young man, who was 22 years old, was a son of Arch McMillan, and a former resident of Kingston. Sergeant McMillan, who was born and resided in Kingston many years, has a host of friends who will be shocked to hear of his death. His father resides in Buffalo.

One Name on Casualty List.

Today's casualty list issued by the war department contains the name of but one Ulster county man. Bugler Victor M. Taylor, emergency address, Mrs. Florence Taylor, Box 77, Napanoch, wounded, degree undetermined.

NITRO POWDER CO. DENIED APPEAL

From Verdict Awarded Employe Trainor—Two Local Appeals in Appellate Division.

The court of appeals Tuesday handed down a decision in the matter of Trainor, respondent, against Nitro Powder Company, appellant, the motion for leave to appeal being denied with cost and necessary printing disbursements. Mr. Trainor, an employe at the Nitro Powder plant, a few years ago was injured by reason of an explosion of some dynamite and he claiming negligence on the part of the defendant company, sued for damages and recovered a verdict in a few thousand dollars, his attorneys being Cunningham & Traver. Joseph M Fowler was attorney for Emanuel Metzger and the Nitro Powder Company. The latter appealed to the higher courts and the court of appeals decision favors Trainor.

Before the appellate division of the supreme court, at Albany Tuesday, two appeals from decisions of Justice Hasbrouck came up on appeal, as follows:

William Goetze, appellant, against Emilie Goetze, respondent. Appeal from order of Justice Hasbrouck at the Kingston special term, vacating a judgment of divorce in favor of the plaintiff. Richard O. Bassett appeared for respondent; Thomas F. McDermott for appellant.

Nelbe C. Doty, appellant, against Rensselaer County Mutual Fire Insurance Company and Job Doty, respondents. Appeal from order of Justice Hasbrouck at the Kingston special term, denying plaintiff's motion to serve a second amended and supplemental complaint. Thomas S. Fagan appeared for respondents; Thomas F. Glavin for appellant.

47 DIPHTHERIA CASES QUARANTINED

Two new cases of diphtheria were reported to Health Officer Frank A. Johnston this morning. Both cases are in the same family on Delaware avenue, at Kingston Point. This makes 47 cases actually under quarantine today in the city. There are also 99 carriers under quarantine. It will be seen by this that the diphtheria situation is improving slowly, but there should be no let-up in precautions to avoid a spread of the disease.

BRUNETTS 41 BLONDES 21

PRESIDENT ADDS LITTLE INFORMATION

On League in New York Speech—Says Critics Selfishly Oppose But Offer Nothing Constructive, and Is Unmoved by Their Strictures.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 5.—Five thousand persons filled the Metropolitan Opera House Tuesday evening to hear President Wilson, on the eve of his departure for Paris, answer the strictures made by senators upon the proposed covenant of the League of Nations. He declared that the criticisms made no impression on him because there was no "medium through which they could be transmitted to him," and asserted his belief that the sentiment of the country was proof against such narrowness and selfishness.

Parts of the president's speech were similar to the sentiments he uttered in Boston when he returned last week.

The president said he was puzzled by some of the criticisms, not by the criticisms themselves, but by the fact of criticism. When he said that he could not imagine how the critics of the plan "can live and not live in the atmosphere of the world," there was laughter, and he followed this by remarking that he could not imagine how his critics could live and not be in contact with the events of their time. He added that he had heard no counsel of generosity in their criticism and no constructive suggestion.

Text of President's Address.

Mr Wilson spoke as follows:

My Fellow Citizens: I accept the intimation of the air just played; I will not come back "till it's over, over there." And yet I pray God, in the interests of peace and of the world, that that may be soon.

The first thing that I am going to tell the people on the other side of the water is that an overwhelming majority of the American people is in favor of the League of Nations. I know that that is true; I have the unmistakable intimations of it from all parts of the country, and the voice rings true in every case. I account myself fortunate to speak here under the unusual circumstances of this evening. I am happy to associate myself with Mr. Taft in this great cause. He has displayed an elevation of view and a devotion to public duty which is beyond praise.

And I am the more happy because this means that this is not a party issue. No party has the right to appropriate this issue, and no party will in the long run dare oppose it.

We have listened to so clear and admirable an exposition of many of the main features of the proposed covenant of the League of Nations that it is perhaps not necessary for me to discuss in any particular way the contents of the document. I will seek rather to give you its setting. I do not know when I have been more impressed than by the conferences of the commission set up by the Conference of Peace to draw up a covenant for the League of Nations. The representatives of fourteen nations sat around that board—not young men, not men inexperienced in the affairs of their own countries, not men inexperienced in the politics of the world; and the inspiring influence of every meeting was the concurrence of purpose on the part of all those men to come to an agreement and an effective working agreement with regard to this League of the civilized world.

There was a conviction in the whole impulse; there was conviction of more than one sort; there was the conviction that this thing ought to be done, and there was also the conviction that not a man there would venture to go home and say that he had not tried to do it.

Needs to Watch Intrigue.

Mr. Taft has set the picture for you of what a failure of this great purpose would mean. We have been hearing for all these weary months that this agony of war has lasted of the sinster purpose of the Central Empires, and we have made maps of the course that they meant their conquests to take. Where did the lines of that map lie, of that central line that we used to call from Bremen to Bagdad? They lay through these very regions to which Mr. Taft has called your attention, but they lay then through a united empire, the Austro-Hungarian Empire, whose indemnity Germany was bound to respect, as her ally lay in the path of that line of conquest; the Turkish Empire, whose interests she professed to make her own, lay in the direct path that she intended to tread. And now what has happened? The Austro-Hungarian Empire has gone to pieces and the Turkish Empire has disappeared, and the nations that effected that great result—for it was a result of liberation—are now responsible as the trustees of the assets of those great nations. You not only would have weak nations living in this path, but you would have nations in which that old poisonous seed of intrigue could be planted with the certainty that the crop would be abundant; and one of the things that the League of Nations is intended to watch is the course of intrigue. Intrigue cannot stand publicity, and if the League of Nations were nothing but a great debating society it would kill intrigue.

It is one of the agreements of this covenant that it is the friendly right of every nation a member of the league to call attention to anything that it thinks will disturb the peace of the world, no matter where that thing is occurring. There is no sub-

PRESIDENT ON WAY BACK TO CONFERENCE

Executive and Mrs. Wilson Tired But Happy As George Washington Warps Out of Strike-Bound New York Harbor---Says People Understand His Attitude.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 5.—With the plaudits of the American metropolis ringing about him and supremely confident of the support of the whole country on his League of Nations idea, President Woodrow Wilson began his second journey to France today.

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and a large party, sailed from Hoboken on the liner George Washington at 8:18 a. m.

"Every statement that I made in my New York speech last night and every word I said before leaving Washington will be understood by the people if not by certain politicians," said President Wilson before the liner sailed.

The president seemed tired, but was cheerful and smiled as he spoke.

"The responsibility of those who blocked necessary legislation in Washington during the closing days of congress is certainly known to the people and that responsibility does not have to be shared," continued President Wilson.

The president expressed the belief that the work of the peace conference would be concluded sooner than he thought possible immediately after his departure from Paris.

From the deck President and Mrs. Wilson went to the bridge where they smilingly acknowledged the cheers and shouts from the people on the dock. As the liner drew out the presidential salute of twenty-one guns was fired and the colors were broken out.

Because of the harbor strike the passage of the George Washington down the bay was less noisy than on the previous presidential departure in December.

Besides the president and Mrs. Wilson others making up the party were: Miss Benham, secretary to Mrs. Wilson; Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, physician to the White House and aide to the president; former Attorney General Gregory; Prentiss Gray, of the food administration; Charles M. Swem and Charles C. Wagner, White House stenographers;; Gilbert F. Close, Irwin Hoover, chief White House usher; George Long, in charge of the baggage, nine secret service men and servants.

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

Walter F Roehl, U. S. N. P. S., stationed at Pelham Bay, spent a 48 hour furlough at his home on Foxhall avenue.

Corporal Joseph L. Howard has returned to Camp Upton after spending a five day furlough at the home of his mother, Mrs. James Howard, No. 167 Henry street.

Corporal K. O. Lantry of the Aviation Military Police, Post Field, Oklahoma, has received his honorable discharge and has returned to his home at 227 Smith avenue, this city.

SOCIETY NOTES.

In addition to the numbers of the program printed in last evening's issue of The Freeman of the entertainment to be given this evening at the home of Mrs Hogeboom on Main street, Mrs. E. E. Fessenden will give readings.

A surprise party was given Mrs. E. Van Hovenburg Monday evening at her home 149 Prospect street, in honor of her birthday. During the evening delicious refreshments were served and a very delightful time was enjoyed by all present. The guests departed wishing Mrs. Van Hovenberg many more happy birthdays.

A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ennist at their home 23 West Pierpont street, Saturday evening, it being their fifteenth wedding anniversary. The guests present were Mrs. Lucas Roosa, Miss W. E. Shaw, Mrs. Ray Wean, J. Herrick, of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roosa, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Roosa of Red Hook and Dr. and Mrs. U. T. Kemble of Sundown. A bountiful supper was served at 12 o'clock. Music and dancing were enjoyed until the wee small hours. All voted Mr. and Mrs. Ennist royal entertainers.

The Coterie.

The Coterie will meet on Saturday, March 8, with Miss Huber, at her home on Highland avenue.

D. A. R. Meeting.

All members of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R. are reminded of the meeting of the Chapter at the Chapter House, tomorrow, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. An especially attractive and delightful program has been arranged by Mrs. E. F. MacFadden and Mrs. Charles S. Wood. Miss Ellen Van Slyke and Miss Katharine O. Van Keuren will be the hostesses.

Lowell Club.

The week's meeting of the Lowell Club was held at the home of Mrs. Frank B. Seeley, Miss Fuller being the hostess. Following the roll call of current events, three remarkably fine papers were given, all relating to the subject for the day, "Panama." Mrs. Wonderly had the first of the papers, her subject being "The Historical Romance of Panama," being most entertaining. Miss Fuller had the second of the three papers, "The History and Construction of the Panama Canal," which proved to be both interesting and informing to a marked degree. By special request Mrs. Delaplane read an exceptionally able paper on the subject of the Panama Canal, which she had upon a former occasion read at a meeting of the club. It was voted at this meeting that the club should hold its annual banquet on March 28 at the Stuyvesant. Next Tuesday afternoon the club will meet for Red Cross work at the D. A. R. chapter house, and the following week, the meeting will be at the home of Mrs. A. H. Van Buren.

Winners Meet Tonight.

Regular monthly meeting of Winners' Class of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will be held at the home of President Harvey Davis, No. 106 O'Neil street, this evening. A large attendance is desired. Meeting to be called at 8 o'clock.

Howe's Pictures at High School.

The Lyman H. Howe pictures will be shown for the first time in Kingston this year at the High School Auditorium, under the auspices of the Senior Class on March 7 and 8.

Thimble Social.

Circle No. 1 of the Reformed Church of the Comforter will hold a thimble social Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. H DeForest, 328 Broadway. Everyone cordially invited.

TESTIMONIAL FUND NET TOTAL $6,541

As soon as the few remaining unpaid subscriptions and patron tickets are received by Executive Manager Fowler the executive committee will meet and make a final report on the result of the campaign for the Kolts-Lawrence fund. Following this meeting two checks for $3,270.55 each will be presented to the widows of Policeman James Lawrence and Fireman Louis Kolts as their share of the receipts. The final report was made public this morning by Mr. Fowler on the receipts of the fund including the proceeds from the refreshment booth and the cloak checking room, and it follows in detail:

Previously announced	$6,537.75
Refreshment booth, conducted by the Woman's Motor Corps	61.35
Coat checking room	52.10
Additional tickets	7.50
Total received	$6,658.10
Expenses	117.00
Total	$6,541.10

Manager Fowler, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood and Chief Rodney Chipp of the fire department are more than gratified at the amount raised and want to publicly express their appreciation of the hearty co-operation that was rendered by the city of Kingston at large.

Meeting of Pomona Grange.

The regular quarterly meeting of Pomona Grange will be held at Lake Katrine on Friday, March 7, opening at 11 a. m. Members should make it a point to attend as this meeting promises to be worth while. The delegates who attended the State Grange will give their reports and other business of interest. All Fourth Degree members are urged to come and join. The Pomona dinner will be served in the hall at the usual price.

Brink's Bill Re-Enacts.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 5 (Special)—The assembly has passed the bill of Assemblyman Brink reenacting Section 8, Chapter 65, of the Laws of 1906, relative to the audit of bills of the sheriff of Ulster county for the care and maintenance of prisoners.

CAMP RUMORS OF TROUBLE AT HOME

Also Rumors of Almost Everything Else. Now That There is Time to Invent Them—Christian Science That Didn't Work Out.

Camp de Souge, France, Feb. 6.—For goodness sake don't mention camp rumors to me, for we have a new one over here every half hour. We are to come home one minute, the next we are to go to Siberia and become citizens of Russia for about ten years and the next minute we are never to leave this camp. Personally, from all indications, I believe we will soon, in a couple of months, close out this place and move elsewhere. The ordnance has gone, several Q. M. men are being sent away, Signal Corps and other detachments are growing smaller and like the Arab, folding their tents and silently stealing away (to some other camp) and it looks as if we will soon follow along the same unknown trail. Personally, I have a good job here at present although I would prefer a more active one outside; still I like to sit around and swap yarns and grow fat. For the past month, since closing up our 1918 business, we have had it quite easy for few troops are coming in to bother us. The remount with several thousand horses gives us little trouble for they draw their supplies from the train as it comes in. War equipment is no longer issued to combat troops so we are gradually shipping this out as we get cars.

Vin Blanc and Christian Science.

I received a letter from a friend tonight in which she said, "You seem to be the only one in France who sees any sun." Well, I will admit that from some of my letters you probably will think that it really is a land of sunshine and furloughs when you are not on pass to some old and historic town. Don't let anyone make you believe it, for I have seen about as much rain as sunshine, but I have not tried to mention all of the disagreeable times, weather and duties which we have to perform. I have been trying a little bit of Christian Science myself like one of the fellows who came in on pay night pretty well "vin blanced" up. He tipped over a candle and then tried to pick it up on the lighted end. Each time he would grab the hot end and drop it say, it is not hot, until he burned his hand so he could not bend it enough to grasp the candle any more. That is me—it does not rain. I only wear my raincoat because the sky leaks. I did not come over here to see the bad things, but the good things. Incidentally, it is now raining a fine steady rain—and it has been for two days and gives prospects of continuing.

More Camp Rumors.

There are all sorts of people collected together to make a world and we have them over here as well as in the states. Some of the boys over here are starting rumors of the terrible times the people back home are having because the boys are not being sent home fast enough. How about it? Possibly there is some trouble, but if they would stop to think it would not be. Just because the fighting has stopped it is no reason for us to get in a hurry and rush them home so as to give Germany the impression that we were over here against our will or forced to stay and as soon as the trouble was about over the mob spirit took hold of our people and compelled the government to rush us back. Might rather give them the impression that we are here and can and will remain as long as she continues to act with an overbearing manner.

Time to Think of Wet Feet.

Of course the fighting is over and the boys naturally have little to think of except their "chow," bum bed and wet feet. This always will make them restless, for they have to think of something, but every one of them knows that we might rather remain here a couple of months while we are here than rush home and give a wrong impression. I am as anxious as the next to get home, but I won't complain if I am kept here for six or eight months yet. I was here a long time before many of the fellows already coming home were even in the army. Some of the outfits never saw any more of the front than I did and some never got outside this camp, still they are coming home. I seem to be out of luck as to coming home, still I should worry. I am tickled to death to know that the thing is over and I will get home eventually. It is tough sticking around over here when I could be having a grand old time back home. But the fellows up front should have first chance to get home.

This afternoon the lieutenant and some of the fellows were living over all the old times when we used to go stealing apples and playing hookey. We told of the girls we used to dance with and the good times we used to have and had a regular time, but it was not like the real stuff which we might be doing if we were only there now. Our officers are regular fellows and we have a fine time when we are not busy.

"Hero" Stories Pretty Strong.

Some of those Evening Post stories about the war were very good and I was able to read and enjoy several of them when I could get hold of an old Post. I presume you read of the S. O. S. gang. Well some of them were very good and still some of them made us blush at the grand "heroes" we were always painted, or rather penned, to be. The S. O. S. sure does work, take it from me, and it is a pretty efficient machine, but, O my! Well, I will be able to tell you all about the efficiency and inefficiency of this man's army in regard to the S. O. S. when I get home. The fighting we will leave to the others, for I know nothing of it. Until some time ago when I went out on the range and fired a few rounds of ammunition I had never fired a gun in the whole war. I left the states before I ever had any rifle practice and I guess they don't consider it necessary to know how to fire sidearms. I wasted a lot of perfectly good .45 ammunition and dirtied up a perfectly good .45 Colts before I was able to tell even where my shots were going.

Speaking of the peanut politicians and their chatter about President Wilson coming over here, I won't say much. But from what I have observed of his reception in Paris, the talk of strangers, both English and French, and the comments of people over here to whom I speak, I am sure it has put America and Americans way up in the estimate of the French people and I know it has carried with it a big benefit as to our real worth.

I really don't see how you have ever kept the price of The Freeman down as it was, with the price of print paper during the past year. I read a list the other day of the papers which had gone out of business since the war and it was quite a long list.

Good Old Summer Time.

The weather over here has been very warm until about two weeks ago when we had a cold snap, but it is now like April back home. Even in the cold weather if it were not for the damp air it would not be bad for it seldom gets below 20 above. Last summer was the time when we got the weather. Many a day we watched the mercury climb up to 115 and then quit looking for fear we would decide it was too hot to work, and those were the days when we worked and needed to keep working. Troops came in, fired a few rounds, put over a day and night barrage, had a few night movements and then were off for the fireworks. It was a continual string leaving and coming and all had to be supplied with every conceivable thing.

WOMEN ORGANIZING FOR LOAN CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Pratt Receiving Reports From All Parts of This District Outlining Plans.

From all parts of the Second Federal Reserve District reports are being sent to Mrs. John T. Pratt, Chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, giving an outline of the complete organizations of the women's committees in all the counties for a whirlwind campaign for the Victory Loan. Mrs. Pratt has summoned her County Chairmen and Vice-Chairman for an all day conference in her New York home March 7, when the local plans will be harmonized and furthered by the District co-operation.

More than one hundred of these county leaders will assemble, and each has been particularly requested to make constructive reports, present difficulties solved, not those which continually arise in all subdistricts alike, their reiterated recital having a depressing effect. Mrs. Pratt urges the women to take time by the forelock and begin their work at once, as they, as a rule, have so many domestic demands to meet that women folk must make an early start in order to overcome the handicap of the business preparedness of the men workers.

Governor Benjamin Strong of the Second Federal Reserve Bank, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of Chicago, member of the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, and Dr. George Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation are to make addresses at the morning session. After the luncheon, which Mrs. Pratt will give for her guests, each of the Sub-District Chairmen will gather her county workers together for a special discussion of local plans and problems.

"Publicity" will be one of the main topics under consideration. Mrs. Pratt is also going to take up the matter of making the Women's Liberty Loan Organization a permanent one, which will be ready at all times to help and co-operate with the Government in any emergency. She will urge this, as it will mean a big saving in time, money and effort, and because a thoroughly organized body such as it is today can do splendid service.

You Know the Tune.

Hark to your Uncle Sam's appeal,
Buy Savings Stamps, War Savings Stamps.
They build our boats, from deck to keel,
Buy Savings Stamps, War Savings Stamps.
They care for all our boys that roam

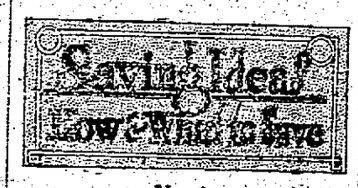
They dress them, feed them, bring them home,
Buy Savings Stamps, War Savings Stamps.

If when you are young you take care of War Savings Stamps, when you are old they will take care of you.

A REAL WELCOME FOR 27TH DIVISION

By EARL BALDWIN THOMAS

"Again they come, our sturdy sons, from deeds of valor well performed, who fought against the German guns, across the Hindenburg Line swarmed, and blasted wide the yawning breach through which the Anzacs hurled their might; and otherwise made haste to teach the Hun just how a Yank can fight. The Empire State's, the New York Guard! What welcome shall we give to these, whose hearts are battle-worn and scarred, whose comrades lie beneath the trees of Vierstant Ridge and Guillemont Farm and by La Selle's dark-crimsoned banks, to these, who answered war's alarm with full, unfaltering, eager ranks? What answer shall we make when they come marching up the Avenue: shall we but cheer and faintly say, "We tried to do as much as you?" No! Let us, which is as we ought, say proudly to that marching mob, "Throughout the Loans we bought and bought, and now we'll finish up the job by backing up the Victory Loan to start you on the upward track, to give you bread, and not a stone, for that's the way WE welcome back!"



No. 1.

Saving and Personal Efficiency.

(Prepared by Savings Division, U. S. Treasury.)

Efficiency—that is, the ability to do one's job, has been hit upon by a British investigator as supplying the most practical answer to the question, "When and where should I begin to save—whether money, food, time, or what not?" This is equally practical for the people of the United States.

This investigator finds that "saving should begin as soon as the point of efficiency has been reached. The things to do without are those that do not directly promote efficiency—that in themselves cost much and profit little."

This standard becomes more strikingly practical when we realize that efficiency is both mental and physical. We must be able to think, or to use our muscles effectively, in our work as the case may be. Happiness, proper rest, normal recreation, as well as food or shelter, all have their part in making up efficiency. The point then is to continue to spend as long as spending makes for efficiency, and to cease when it no longer contributes to personal or family ability.

The British specialist points out that waste is possible in the very process of attaining efficiency and warns the public not to make efficiency a blind idol or an excuse for excess or extravagance. Putting excess into War Savings Stamps is a practical American method of maintaining efficiency, both physical and financial.

Idle Speculation.

"Do you consider it a good plan for a salaried man to carry a large checking account at his bank?"

"Of course. But do you know of a salaried man who is able to do that these days?"

"Certainly not. I was merely asking you a hypothetical question."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Dutch Select Wireless Site.

The site for the wireless station intended for communication between the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies has finally been decided on. The Koelberg hill, which is 86 meters high and located in Hoog-Buurlo, near Apeldoorn, was selected, according to the Scientific American.

A new railway line will be constructed from Kautwyk. The station is to have four towers, each 200 meters high, a large power house and building for housing the operatives. The communicating station in India is to be built near Bandoeng in the Preanger, so that the distance between the two stations will be some 13,000 kilometers.

Ancient Rock Engravings.

The prehistoric art museum lately revealed in Montesquil-Avantes, Ariege, southern France, contains rock engravings estimated to be 30,000 years old. Continuing the exploration interrupted by the war, Count Begouen and his three sons discovered on the inner walls of the cavern a bas relief of a real lion, with numerous figures of reindeers, bisons, horses, bears, elephants, rhinoceroses, and such birds as ducks and swans. Strangest of all is a silhouette of a powerful man, with thick neck, distinctly human limbs, feet and hands, and a tail, and represented walking on all fours.

Prepare for Another Day.

Prepare today for the morrow. It is the only way to advance rapidly and with success. He best succeeds who, in advance to demand, knows his abilities and shortcoming, who is able best to estimate his capacity for production, mental or physical. Prepare incessantly for promotion, and promotion must come. Neglect to prepare for the future, and there will be no future. It is such neglect that has spelled stagnation for millions in the past, that will spell stagnation for millions in the future.—Milwaukee Journal.

When Traveling.

In preparing a lunch for a journey, bake the bread in empty baking powder cans. After slicing and spreading, replace it in the cans, put on the covers, and the bread will be as fresh at the end of the trip, though it may be several days, as it was when first packed.

Origin of Tally Ho!

In chatting about the British army in Palestine, which, in the intervals of business, occupied itself in hunting, shooting, fishing, and other British sports, a writer in Palestine, the organ of the British Palestine committee, recalls a very interesting fact. He tells us "Tally-Ho!" is of Crusading origin, being the corruption of Tallus Home, the Syrian for "Come here." Thus, he comments, in the most unexpected way, a sporting cry brought home by King Richard's men or Prince Edward's men is carried back to the land of its origin by King George's men.

Poor Hub.

The loving wife entered a tobacconist's shop and held a piece of brown cloth before the eyes of the perplexed clerk.

"Say, look here," she demanded. "Can you match this with cigars or stogies or anything? It's a piece of my husband's new brown suit. If you haven't got the right shade, say so at once and I'll try around the corner. But I do despise to see a man with light brown cigars sticking out the pockets of a dark brown suit."

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 5, 1919.

SHALL THIS BE DONE AGAIN?

The killed during the great war, as tabulated by General March from available statistics, were a total of 7,354,000, these figures representing only those slain in battle and those who died of wounds. Russia led in battle losses with a total of 1,700,000, Germany came second with 1,600,000, and the United States last with 50,000. Approximate figures for other nations were: France, 1,385,390; Austria, 800,000; England, 706,709; Italy, 460,000; Turkey, 250,000; Belgium, 102,000; Rumania, 100,000; Servia and Montenegro, 100,000; Bulgaria, 100,000. Nearly seven and a half million young men have been sacrificed. A great part of Europe has been devastated, the scars to remain for more than a generation. Famine threatens many millions who individually have been guilty of no wrong. While seven and a half million homes mourn for their dead, uncounted millions look back with shame or horror upon the unspeakable outrages and cruel wrongs which they have suffered.

And all for what? Because a self-adoring nation of scientific savages lusted for world dominion and believed that they could attain their ends through "frightfulness." No wonder an enlightened world desires to put a broken but unrepentant Germany behind prison bars, and to see to it that the horror of the ages shall never be repeated. No wonder there is a world-wide impulse toward a league of sane nations desirous and powerful enough to frown down wars in the future. But nobody wants a league which is imperfect and is liable to end in war. This is a point President Wilson overlooked in his New York speech Tuesday night.

LET US FINISH SOMETHING.

The suggestion made by State Historian Sullivan in his letter to The Freeman, printed Tuesday, that when this city is ready to erect a memorial to the soldiers and sailors such memorial take the form of a museum, will meet the approval of thinking people. There is no limit to the amount of money that could be spent on such a building and no limit to the artistic perfection of it. A memorial to men who gave their lives to the saving of liberty and civilization should, to properly harmonize with the services and character of such men be utilitarian as well as ornamental. A museum would be of incalculable educational value and an asset to the city of so immediate and tangible a nature as to appeal to the most hard-headed and unsentimental business man as well as to the more artistically and sentimentally inclined. When the city is ready to erect a memorial the museum idea should receive serious consideration.

But, until we are ready, let us not dream so much of the future that we forget the immediate present and fail to finish the many projects already planned. The Broadway crossing elimination and the Rondout Creek bridge projects were started many years ago but until very recently neither ever reached beyond a state of somewhat aimless discussion that led to nothing. Now that definite plans are at last under consideration we should not permit anything or anyone to divert our attention from these two very necessary public improvements. They must take precedence of everything else in the way of community work for the reason that in both instances the money invested will pay huge dividends to everybody in Kingston and vicinity who uses the public highways, by the saving of time, the safeguarding of life and, in the case of the bridge, a direct saving in money every time anyone crosses the creek.

Kingston and the surrounding territory will save enough money, once these two public improvements are completed, to in a short time erect a magnificent memorial to our soldiers. In the meantime, except for the necessary expenses of a suitable welcome when our soldiers and sailors come home, not a penny should be frittered away in tawdry makeshifts. When we erect a memorial it should be a real one, worthy of the men whose heroics it will commemorate.

Daylight saving proved to be such a successful experiment last year that the objection to its repetition comes as a surprise to the majority of the people. It seems that the farmers complain that the extra morning hour can not be used to good advantage, especially for haymaking, because the dew is not yet off the grass. But the haymaking period is short and there is much farm work in all of the warmer months that is not checked by dew on the grass. Moreover, heavy morning dews in August hampered the farmers under the old system as well. Daylight saving seems to have come to stay in Europe and in this country we ought to give it a fair trial in peace as well as in war times. Yet, Congress came within an ace of abolishing the plan.

GERMAN INK AND PEN RUN A LOT

Just Like Their Former Owners Did When the Americans Came, is Castle's Excuse for Poor Penmanship in Letter to Friend.

PRIVATE BURTON M. CASTLE.

Co L, 59th Pioneer Infantry, A. E. F., who writes his friend and former employer Robert C. Riddick, of this city, as follows:

Margiennes, France, Jan. 25, 1917

Dear Friend:—I received your welcome letter of Dec 17 this morning also the money order and I surely appreciate both.

It does me good to know that I have so many friends who think of me, although I am a good ways away.

Although I do not need the money just now, as there is no place to spend it except when the canteen is open, I surely am glad to have it as it may came in handy later, and the best wishes that come with it are worth more than the money a thousand times.

I am glad that my mother is getting the allotments now and that she is getting along so good and I am also glad that she has friends who look after her so well.

Give my regards to Mrs. Riddick and tell her I am glad to hear that she is getting along better; also tell her that I have not forgotten her, but I have been trying to write everybody and I have been pretty busy writing whenever I could get a chance. I sent her a postal from Boucq and I hope to send her and all of you a little souvenir, but it's a pretty hard job, because about all the towns we strike are deserted and it's a hard job to send anything from them.

The old shop must be a great place to work now since you have made all the improvements, and I hope to get a chance to see it soon.

We ought to have that human crane over here, that one that juggles double bitts, because we could put him to good use a great many times.

I suppose you expect me to write you some of the news and tell you what's going on over here, but I hardly know what to say, as everything seems the same over here all the while.

You'll have to excuse this scribbling, because I am writing with a German pen and German ink, and they both seem a lot like the Boche himself—they seem bound to have their own way.

The ink wants to blot and the pen wants to dig up the American paper, so between the two I don't know what to do, but I guess I'll have to call for help or throw them out the window if I can't manage them until I finish this.

There are a lot of rumors as to when we'll leave for the states, but they all seem to be around the last of February or the first of March, and I hope they're true.

The boys were all anxious to get over here, but now that the war is over they are all anxious to get back to the old U. S. A.

Well, I think I have done pretty good and I don't know what else to write about, but I want you all to know how much I appreciate what you have done for me.

I'll close now with best wishes to you, your family and all the boys.

Sincerely yours,

Honduras Attractive.

With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Honduras has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual disadvantages. The interior is mountainous and salubrious, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

Law of Compensation.

The law of compensation is, even in these wonderful modern days, very much in evidence. Most of us—in fact, all of us—receive from the world just what we give to it. Smiles and happy words will fall from other lips to us if we ourselves play the same role; but if we are too busy or too "big" to practice those little courtesies we should not be surprised to see only frowns on the faces we meet.

Preserve Apples.

Use dry sand which has been heated and cooled again. Cover the bottom of a stone jar with sand, put in one layer of apples, having the fruit about one-half inch apart, cover with sand, put in another layer of apples, and so on till the jar is full. The jar must be closed air-tight and kept in a cool place. The sand will keep the apples dry and preserve the flavor.

White Paper.

The white paper of which newspapers are made is 98 per cent spruce wood that has been reduced to a pulp and then converted into paper. No other wood is as available for this purpose, and in making newspaper, cardboard and other papers and paper products this country consumes 3,500,000 cords of spruce wood yearly.—Kansas City Times.

Aid in Self-Mastery.

It is a good practice for people to make a practice of doing something every day for their development that they don't want to do, and then to deny themselves every day something they want. This should not be for a day, a week or a year, but a life work. In no other way can a man become master of himself.—Dr. J. H. Tilden.

Rush for Free Molasses.

When a tank car filled with 8,000 gallons of molasses was upset near Telford, Pa., and the molasses began to run out people came by scores on foot, in carriages and by automobiles, and salvaged some hundreds of gallons of molasses before the railroad men plugged the opening and left dozens of disappointed ones waiting to get at the outflow.

Peat in Manitoba.

The Canadian department of mines has recently investigated 13 peat bogs in Manitoba and in a report on the supply of this fuel available in that province states that there are bogs in the Winnipeg river district containing 1,800,000 tons of peat fuel, 25 per cent moisture.

RURAL AUTO EXPRESS

To Be Inaugurated By Scott D. Hornbeck To Ellenville.

George J. Schryver of the Kingston Taxi Service has just sold to Scott D Hornbeck of this city one of the latest model 2 ton Brockway trucks with body specially made and adapted for Rural Express usage

Mr Hornbeck who is well known here having for ten years been connected with the Universal Road Machinery Co, and for three years served as under sheriff under Sheriff Shultis will immediately inaugurate a rural auto express service between this city and Ellenville and plans also to shortly extend the service to take in all outlying districts It is the intention to carry freight and express matter of every description For the present, cars will leave this city early each morning but the leaving time may be changed later if it develops that better service would thus be afforded.

Mr Hornbeck will base his entire business principle on "dependable, trustworthy and prompt service" and for this purpose picked the Brockway truck after a very careful and exhaustive search

FARM BUREAU MEETINGS.

The new plan that the Dairymen's League has about completed for handling surplus of milk will be also discussed at this meeting. This project of the Dairymen's League is a big undertaking and will need to be backed by every league member.

To Hold Benefit for Schatzel.

The friends of Peter Schatzel and there are many, have arranged to hold a ball at Pythian Hall, April 30th, the proceeds to be for his benefit. Mr. Schatzel was employed at the American Grenade Loading plant at the time of the explosion and was very badly injured and has not recovered the use of one of his arms. For a long time Mr. Schatzel was employed at the Hotel Stuyvesant, leaving there to go to the Grenade Loading plant. Perry Byrnes, of the above hotel, a veteran manager of entertainments, will have personal direction of the ball.

THEATER QUESTION QUIETED FOR TIME

That is Until Next Meeting—Aldermen Sustain Mayor's Veto of Mann's Resolution—City Fathers and Sleightsburgh Bridge.

As was anticipated at the time the common council adopted Alderman Mann's resolution fixing theater licenses according to seating capacity, Mayor Canfield sent in a veto of the resolution which was read at the regular monthly meeting of the council Tuesday evening. The mayor based his veto on the grounds that the Mann resolution was not properly drawn. The veto was sustained by a vote of 6 to 5.

President Watts presided at the session with Aldermen Preston, Roosa, Schick, Mann, Kirchner, Kullmann, Van Valkenburgh, Higgins, Connelly, Hull and Purvis present. The absentees were Aldermen Schilp and Kelly.

The session that evening was one of the most quiet and peaceful in years, and the brooding air of calm that over-hung the council chamber was not even dispelled when City Clerk Doremus read Mayor Canfield's veto of the Mann resolution. There was no discussion on the question and when the vote was taken Aldermen Preston, Roosa, Schick, Van Valkenburgh, Higgins and Hull voted to sustain the mayor, while Aldermen Mann, Kirchner, Kullmann, Connelly and Purvis voted to override the veto.

City Treasurer Pardee sent in a communication that the estate of George J. Smith had paid a charge of $9 22, for cleaning sidewalks, under protest The matter was referred to Mayor Canfield and the corporation counsel.

Sewer Assessments.

The board of public works sent in a number of communications relating to sewers that had been built and the aldermen adopted resolutions directing that the amount be raised by special assessment

The South Pine street sanitary sewer was constructed by the board of public works, which is to pay 25 per cent of the cost or $443.53, while 75 per cent or $1 330 59 is to be paid by a special assessment

The South Pine street storm water sewer was constructed by the board which pays 25 per cent of the cost or $741 27, while 75 per cent or $2,223 82 is paid by a special assessment

The Field Court sanitary sewer is constructed, the board paying 25 per cent of the cost or $180 16, and 75 per cent or $540 49 by special assessment.

The Field Court storm water sewer was built by the board, which pays 25 per cent or $176 66, and 75 per cent or $529.97 is paid by special assessment

The Foxhall avenue sanitary sewer built under the sidewalk, the board pays 25 per cent or $516 64, while 75 per cent or $1,549 65 is to be paid by a special assessment.

The Foxhall avenue storm water sewer built under the sidewalk, the board pays 25 per cent or $223.90, while 75 per cent or $671.72 is to be paid by special assessment

The council adopted the necessary resolutions.

Kullmann's Bridge Resolution.

Alderman Kullmann of the Eighth ward introduced a resolution that as the construction of the bridge across the Rondout creek has been delayed several years, and that as the bridge is needed, that the state highway department use every effort to start work as soon as possible and that the common council go on record as disapproving any further delay, and that President Watts communicate with the state highway commission the action taken by the council

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Alderman Roosa offered a resolution that signs be placed on the corner of Albany avenue and Foxhall avenue. Referred to board of public works.

Alderman Kirchner offered a resolution that the board of public works repair the Spruce street railing. The resolution was referred to that board.

Schick Says Something.

A communication was read from the board of public works in regard to the Schick resolution calling for repairs to the Airdrome fence on East O'Reilly street, in which it was stated that work had been started by the board prior to the introduction of the resolution.

This communication made Alderman Schick a little "hot under the collar" for he arose and stated that it was the first Tuesday in February when he had examined the Airdrome fence and found it dangerous and that evening on his way to the common council meeting he noticed that nothing had been done which led him to introduce the resolution and that the board of public works had not taken any action toward repairing the fence prior to the introduction of his resolution. He said other aldermen had introduced resolutions and similar communications had been received from the board of public works.

Wilbur Bridge Not Repaired.

Alderman Purvis, who was mentioned by Alderman Schick as one of the aldermen to introduce resolutions calling for repairs and then to have the board of public works report back that work had been started before the resolution was introduced, spoke up and said that the bridge in Wilbur had not been repaired as yet, and that it was in a dangerous condition and he expected to hear of an accident at that point at any time.

Aside from the little flare-up regarding the board of public works the council session was the year's record for peace and agreeableness, and shortly before 9 o'clock an adjournment was taken.

Likely at the April meeting the theater question will again raise its head.

AND SHE CAN'T CHANGE IT!

English Girl, Christened "John," Will Quite Likely Grow Up to Bless That Curate.

A canal-faring couple attended the baptismal service at a church near the wharf where their boat was re-loading. When the curate came to the request to "name this child," there was no response from either parent. They looked at each other as though seeking inspiration.

Anxious to help them out of the difficulty, the curate caught the man's eye, and in a whisper suggested "John."

The boatman nodded pleasantly as though relieved of a great responsibility: and the ceremony proceeded to its conclusion.

As the worthy couple left the building the woman addressed her spouse in tones of withering scorn: "Jo' fule, jo'. We've got two Jacks now, and thiseen's a wench!"—London Tit-Bits.

Value of Play.

Women who have worked together in the Red Cross and other organizations of relief and war work have found a common meeting place, and their sympathies have reached out to one another, irrespective of birth, wealth or station. With Kipling we have discovered that there is no difference after all between the colonel's wife and Judy O'Grady, and this human-ness that the war has given to us will find its expression in many new ways that will open to us in the months and perhaps years of readjustment and reconstruction after the war.

In Good American.

My cousin was driving an ambulance loaded with French and American wounded soldiers along a road which was being shelled. Some of the shells were exploding uncomfortably near. At length one burst directly ahead of their ambulance, forcing them to make a detour to avoid the shell hole.

"Pres, pres!" cried a Frenchman, which expression means in good American, "Gee, that was a close one!"

An American doughboy, however, misinterpreted it, and cried out in disgust: "H—ll, I've been praying for half an hour!"—Chicago Tribune.

"Viceroy of Heaven."

Prince Max of Baden was once brought to book by King Edward, says a writer in the London Daily Express. The prince and the late king met at Marienbad, and the prince severely criticized the British constitution, which he characterized as "republican with an hereditary president." King Edward replied: "I see what it is. You, too, if you became emperor, would, like William, like to be viceroy of heaven." Then he added: "If you don't change these ideas, you will finish by setting fire to your own house."

Fore!

The crowd around the ticker was discussing the operations of a youthful speculator, who shall be nameless. Said one:

"I hear he was hit on the head with a golf ball two years ago and has been rather stupid ever since."

"Maybe so," said the floor manager, "but he has cleaned up a million or more in the same time."

"Gee!" said the first. Then after a pause, "Say, how do you go about learning to play golf?"—Wall Street Journal.

Ridding Ships of Rats.

Dr. R. H. Creel of the public health service, has made a report on the relative efficiency of fumigants for rodents on ships, as determined by subsequent intensive trapping over a period of one year. Sulphur dioxide was used on 62 vessels and hydrocyanic gas on 182 vessels. With a much shorter period of exposure, the latter resulted in the destruction of 95 per cent of the rodents, and the sulphur of only 77 per cent.

Bicycle Cavalry Proved Winner.

During the last actions in France the military cyclist units won well-earned praise. The cyclists can cover 60 miles in a day on average roads and come into action fit at the end of the ride. Bicycles, unlike horses, do not tire rapidly and, furthermore, require neither food nor drink.

One Language.

Ten per cent of America's adult population are unable to read the language of the country. Eighteen per cent of the "coming citizens" of the United States do not attend any school. One tenth of the first 2,000,000 men called to the colors could not read their orders or understand them. The figures are from Secretary Lane's recent report. There is room for only one set of ideals in this country and, except for newcomers, there is room for only one language. While the teaching of English is but one of many items in the Americanization program, it is an important one, as the figures of Secretary Lane proclaim.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wireless and Morale.

Since the armistice brought hostilities to an end it has been learned that the morale of the population of Lille was maintained by news given from a French wireless station hidden from the Germans, according to Wireless Age. Good news spread quickly through underground channels. The people knew that ten thousand American soldiers were arriving daily. Airplanes also dropped many leaflets, which were eagerly taken despite German efforts to prevent their distribution.—Scientific American.

More or Less?

Hickop had decided to turn over a new leaf, and he couldn't help letting everybody know. "I have resolved for the New Year," he said, feeling if his halo was on straight, "that I shall not drink any more." "But, my dear fellow," protested a Doubting Thomas, "you couldn't drink any more. The point is have you resolved to drink any less?"—London Answers.

"DIRECT BITE TEETH"

After years of experimenting our laboratories have discovered a direct bite set of artificial teeth. These plates improve the sense of taste and insure perfect enunciation and articulation. The teeth absolutely cannot be discerned from natural teeth. These teeth because of the direct bite have three times the biting strength of ordinary plates. Are you now wearing artificial teeth? If so, we strongly advise you to call and investigate this new plate.

JANSEN FINDS MOSTLY SUNSHINE

Because That is What He Looks For In France—Twice Rejected as a Volunteer, He Finally Got in as a Drafted Man.

PRIVATE ERNEST S. JANSEN.

Co. G, 21st Engineers, A. E. F., formerly employed by the D. & H. R. R. Co. at Albany, who tried to enlist in the Marines in 1917 but was rejected, finally being accepted by the 22nd Engineers. After ten days' service he was discharged and in November was drafted and in June, 1918, was called to the colors and sent to Camp Upton, from which camp he was transferred to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. After six weeks' training was sent to Camp Merritt, N. J., for embarkation and on August 30th sailed for France, landing in England, finally reaching France. Two of his letters follow:

"With the Colors."

Somewhere in France, Oct. 28, 1918

Dear Mother and All:—Well after about two weeks of continual rain the sun shines once more. It sure did not look like "Sunny France" those two weeks, but then they tell me that it rains more than it snows in France in winter. It is quite cold here mornings but I haven't seen but a thin skim of ice once and that was two or more weeks ago.

The Salvation Army has a hut at our camp and they sure do treat us boys fine. I'll take my hat off to the Salvation Army hereafter you can bet. I am more at home in their hut than at the Y. M. C. A. There is a woman in the Salvation Army but from Nyack so being from the same state we have formed quite an acquaintance. Building railroads is in order of the day and that is all I can see in front of me. We are about fifty miles back of the front or was, you know the Yanks are moving the front back quite fast; let the good work go on. But even so once in a while a Boche machine sneak over and makes it interesting.

Well give my love to all and as I still am able to eat three good squares a day, I have no cause to complain. Your loving son.

"With the Colors."

Somewhere in France, Nov. 5, 1918.

Dear Mother and All:—Your welcome letter received yesterday and real glad to hear from you, glad you are getting on so nicely with the work, but just the same I know you are all working too hard. Received Rosamond's letter same time as I yours. Have not heard from Diff as yet. Influenza is running among the boys over here too.

When you think of me you always want to remember that I was one of the boys that wanted to go, and go real bad so I am satisfied and as I never plan ahead or expect this or that why life rolls along just like the weather, rain and sunshine mixed. With me mostly sunshine for I never let anything bother me for any length of time. I only wish care rested as lightly on everybodys shoulders as it does on mine.

High Falls must seem like a deserted village with everything closed up. It sure was dead enough before the two Bills closed up, so I can just imagine how it is now.

I knew when "Old Lizzie" started to go she would go all to pieces. It only needed that rap Fred handed her to start her down the repair road. Well I have not been in an automobile since leaving the States. You know in the army you walk most of the time.

Tell aunty and Uncle Fred I send my love. It is just as well George was turned down. I sure would like to have seen Aunt Jen and when I come back to the states I am going up to see her sure. Fine as usual. Love to all.

Your loving son.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears a Discussion Regarding Proposed Charter, and Talk of Petition to Eliminate Salary Amendments.

"Going up to the charter hearing tonight?" asked the customer settling himself back in his chair for a chat.

"Hardly think I will be able to finish up in time," replied the busy barber.

"What do you think of the charter amendments anyway?" was the next question hurled by the customer.

"I see by The Freeman," replied the barber, "that Mayor Caufield has eliminated some of the provisions that were adopted by the city fathers."

"I don't doubt that a bit," said the customer.

"From conversation gathered from those in getting work done," continued the barber, "there seems to be some talk of getting up a petition and sending it to Senator Walton if the provisions granting salaries to the mayor and aldermen go through as proposed."

"On what grounds?" asked the customer.

"Taxpayers believe that taxes are high enough without increasing the running expense of the city some $10,000 more as provided by the city fathers in their charter amendments," exclaimed the barber.

"Well a man ought to get paid for his time," argued the customer.

"Sure, sure," replied the barber, "but first there should be an attempt made to cut down the tax rate. Anyway what would be the use of increasing the number of aldermen from thirteen to twenty; it would only mean that if the new aldermen chewed the rag like some of the present incumbents, anyone who attended the meeting would have to take breakfast along in order to be present when the session ended."

"You said something," agreed the customer with a smile.

"I have found," continued the barber "that you get better results with a smaller number of men doing the work than by having a large number and if anything I would favor dividing the city into half a dozen wards instead of increasing them to twenty."

The people of the town of Marbletown are supporting an orphan in France and the following is the second letter received from the little fellow (he is only 7 years old), who is the special care of our town:

La Forest Dec. 31, 1918.

My Dear Benefactor:—We have been here for three weeks. As I told you the first time I wrote to you, ma has come to take care of grandma, who was sick, but she has died. We are very sad. We are going to spend the winter with aunt, who is all alone. Uncle has not yet come from war. We are better in the mountains. This is a very small village and when it is cold there is much ice and we skate a great deal. We take long rides in the valley with my comrades. My dear benefactor, tomorrow is New Year's Day. I do not wish to let this year pass without giving you my thanks since you have been so good to interest yourself in a poor little orphan like me. I wish you a Happy New Year and I hope I will know you when I am bigger. Hoping my dear benefactor will receive this from her little protege, with best wishes for a Happy New Year.

WEST ESOPUS.

West Esopus, March 4.—Mrs. Fred Rosener has received word that her daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Wheeler, will return home Tuesday from Atlanta, Ga. The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler has been seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Davis have been confined to their bed with influenza.

Graham Dause was ill for a few days.

Mrs. Thomas Ambrose is able to be about again after an illness of influenza.

Thomas Kennedy is much improved at this writing.

Mrs. Thomas Kennedy and Mrs. John Renney were last Tuesday guests of the Misses Minnie and Rachel Rosener.

Word has been received that Walter Urlacher is expected home soon.

Miss Hazel Freer has returned to Cheokee Lake, where she is employed, after an illness of Spanish influenza.

Theron Freer has been busy hauling wood for Myron Freer of Chiloville.

Charles Thompson butchered a pair of lovely pigs last week.

Daniel Freer was a Kingston visitor one day last week.

Prospects of Palestine.

Palestine has never had a well-defined boundary except the sea on its west, but it is understood to be about 10,000 miles in extent. Much of this area is too dry and rocky for tillage; large parts are too dry even for cattle or sheep.

ject that may touch the peace of the world which is exempt from inquiry and discussion, and I think everybody here present will agree with me that Germany would never have gone to war if she had permitted the world to discuss the aggression upon Serbia for a single week. The British Foreign Office suggested, it pleaded, that there might be a day or two delay so that the representatives of the nations of Europe could get together and discuss the possibilities of a settlement. Germany did not dare permit a day's discussion. You know what happened. So soon as the world realized that an outlaw was at large, the nations began, one by one, to draw together against her. We know for a certainty that if Germany had thought for a moment that Great Britain would go in with France and with Russia she never would have undertaken the enterprise. and the League of Nations is meant as notice to all outlaw nations that not only Great Britain, but the United States and the rest of the world will go in to stop enterprises of that sort. And so the League of Nations is nothing more nor less than the covenant that the world will always maintain the standards which it has now vindicated by some of the most precious blood ever spilled.

The liberated peoples of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and of the Turkish Empire call out to us for this thing. It has not arisen in the council of statesmen. Europe is a bit sick at heart at this very moment, because it sees that statesmen have had no vision, and that the only vision has been the vision of the people. Those who suffer see. Those against whom wrong is wrought know how desirable is the right and the righteous. The nations that have long been under the heel of the Austrian, that have long cowered before the German, that have long suffered the indescribable agonies of being governed by the Turk, have called out to the world, generation after generation, for justice, for liberation, for succor; and no Cabinet in the world has heard them. Private organizations, pitying hearts, philanthropic men and women have poured out their treasure in order to relieve these sufferings; but no nation has said to the nations responsible, "You must stop; this thing is intolerable, and we will not permit it." And the vision has been with the people. My friend, I wish you would reflect upon this proposition. The vision as to what is necessary for great reforms has seldom come from the top in the nations of the world. It has come from the need and the aspiration and the self-assertion of great bodies of men who meant to be free. And I can explain some of the criticisms which have been leveled against this great enterprise only by the supposition that the men who utter the criticisms have never felt the great pulse of the heart of the world.

Amazed at Ignorance of Opponents.

And I am amazed—not alarmed, but amazed—that there should be in some quarters such a comprehensive ignorance of the state of the world. These gentlemen do not know what the mind of men is just now. Everybody else does. I do not know where they have been doseted. I do not know by what influences they have been blinded: but I do know that they have been separated from the general currents of the thought of mankind.

And I want to utter this solemn warning. not in the way of a threat: the forces of the world do not threaten, they operate. The great tides of the world do not give notice that they are going to rise and run; they rise in their majesty and overwhelming might, and those who stand in the way are overwhelmed. Now the heart of the world is awake, and the heart of the world must be satisfied. Do not let yourselves suppose for a moment that the uneasiness in the population of Europe is due entirely to economic causes or economic motives; something very much deeper underlies it all than that. They see that their governments have never been able to defend them against intrigue or aggression, and that there is no force of foresight or of prudence in any modern cabinet to stop war. And therefore they say, "There must be some fundamental cause for this," and the fundamental cause they are beginning to perceive to be that nations have stood singly or in little jealous groups against each other, fostering prejudice, increasing the danger of war rather than concerting measures to prevent it: and that if there is right in the world, if there is justice in the world, there is no reason why nations should be divided in the support of justice.

They are therefore saying if you really believe that there is a right, if you really believe that wars ought to be stopped, stop thinking about the rival interests of nations, and think about men and women and children throughout the world. Nations are not made to afford distinction to their rulers by way of success in the manoeuvres of politics; nations are meant, if they are meant for anything, to make the men and women and children in them secure and happy and prosperous, and no nation has the right to set up its special interests against the interests and benefits of mankind, least of all this great nation which we love. It was set up for the benefit of mankind; it was set up to illustrate the highest ideals and to achieve the highest aspirations of men who wanted to be free; and the world—the world of today—believes and counts on us, and would be thrown back into the blackness of despair if we deserted it.

I have tried once and again, my fellow citizens, to say to little circles of friends or to larger bodies what seems to be the real hope of the peoples of Europe, and I tell you frankly I have not been able to do so because when the thought tries to crowd itself into speech the profound emotion of the thing is too much; speech will not carry. I have felt the tragedy of the hope of those suffering peoples.

It is tragedy because it is a hope which cannot be realized in its perfection, and yet I have felt besides its tragedy, its compulsion—its compulsion upon every living man to exercise every influence that he has to the utmost to see that as little as possible of that hope is disappointed, because if men cannot now, after this agony of bloody sweat, come to their self-possession and see how to regulate the affairs of the world, we will sink back into a period of struggle in which there will be no hope, and, therefore, no mercy. There can be no mercy where there is no hope, for why should you spare another if you yourself expect to perish? Why should you be pitiful if you can get no pity? Why should you be just if, upon every hand, you are put upon?

Critics Ignore Soldiers' Spirit.

There is another thing which I think the critics of this covenant have not observed. They not only have not observed the temper of the world, but they have not even observed the temper of those splendid boys in khaki that they sent across the seas. I have had the proud consciousness of the reflected glory of those boys, because the constitution made me their commander-in-chief, and they have taught me some lessons. When we went into the war, we went into it on the basis of declarations which it was my privilege to utter, because I believed them to be an interpretation of the purpose and thought of the people of the United States. And those boys went over there with the feeling that they were sacredly bound to the realization of those ideals; that they were not only going over there to beat Germany; they were not going over there merely with resentment in their hearts against a particular outlaw nation; but that they were crossing those three thousand miles of sea in order to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere where the rights of mankind were threatened. They would not sit still in the trenches. They would not be restrained by the prudence of experienced continental commanders. They thought they had come over there to do a particular thing, and they were going to do it and do it at once. And just as soon as that rush of spirit as well as rush of body came in contact with the lines of the enemy, they began to break, and they continued to break until the end. They continued to break, my fellow-citizens, not merely because of the physical force of those lusty youngsters, but because of the irresistible spiritual force of the armies of the United States. It was that they felt. It was that that awed them. It was that that made them feel, if these youngsters ever got a foothold, they could never be dislodged, and that therefore every foot of ground that they won was permanently won for the liberty of mankind.

An do you suppose that having felt that crusading spirit of these youngsters, who went over there not to glorify America but to serve their fellowmen, I am going to permit myself for one moment to slacken in my effort to be worthy of them and of their cause? What I said at the opening I said with a deeper meaning than perhaps you have caught; I do mean not to come back until it's over over here, and it must not be over until the nations of the world are assured of the permanency of peace.

Gentlemen on this side of the water would be very much profited by getting into communication with some gentlemen on the other side of the water. We sometimes think, my fellow citizens, that the experienced statesmen of the European nations are an unusually hard-headed set of men, by which we generally mean, although we do not admit it, that they are a bit cynical, that they say, "This is a very practical world," by which you always mean that it is not an ideal world; that they do not believe that things can be settled upon an ideal basis. Well, I never came into intimate contact with them before, but if they used to be that way, they are not that way now. They have been subdued, if that was once their temper, by the awful significance of recent events and the awful importance of what is to ensue; and there is not one of them with whom I have come in contact who does not feel that he cannot in conscience return to his people from Paris unless he has done his utmost to do something more than attach his name to a treaty of peace. Every man in that conference knows that the treaty of peace in itself will be inoperative, as Mr. Taft has said, without this constant support and energy of a great organization such as is supplied by the League of Nations.

And men who when I first went over there were skeptical of the possibility of forming a League of Nations admitted that if we could but form it it would be an invaluable instrumentality through which to secure the operation of the various parts of the treaty; and when that treaty comes back, gentlemen on this side will find the covenant not only in it. but so many threads of the treaty tied to the covenant that you cannot dissect the covenant from the treaty without destroying the whole vital structure. The structure of peace will not be vital without the League of Nations, and no man is going to bring back a cadaver with him.

Puzzled by Some Criticisms.

I must say that I have been puzzled by some of the criticisms—not by the criticisms themselves; I can understand them perfectly, even when there was no foundation for them; but by the fact of the criticism. I cannot imagine how these gentlemen can live and not live in the atmosphere of the world. I cannot imagine how they can live and not be in contact with the events of their times, and I particularly cannot imagine how they can be Americans and set up a doctrine of careful selfishness, thought out to the last detail. I have heard no counsel of generosity in their criticism. I have heard no contructive suggestion. I have heard nothing except "will it not be dangerous to us to help the world?" It would be fatal to us not to help it.

From being what I will venture to call the most famous and the most powerful nation in the world we would of a sudden have become the most contemptible. So. I did not need to be told, as I have been told, that the people of the United States would support this covenant. I am an American and I knew they would. What a sweet revenge it is across the world. They laughed at us once, they thought we did not mean our professions of principle. They thought so until April of 1917. It was hardly credible to them that we would do more than send a few men over and go through the forms of helping, and when they saw multitudes hastening across the sea, and saw what those multitudes were eager to do when they got to the other side, they stood at amaze and said: "The thing is real, this nation is the friend of mankind as it said it was." The enthusiasm, the hope, the trust, the confidence in the future bred by that change of view is indescribable. Take an individual American and you may often find him selfish, and confined to his special interests: but take the American in the mass and he is willing to die for an idea. The sweet revenge, therefore, is this, that we believed in righteousness, and now we are ready to make the supreme sacrifice for it, the supreme sacrifice of throwing in our fortunes with the fortunes of men everywhere. Mr. Taft was speaking of Washington's utterance about entangling alliances, and if he will permit me to say so, he put the exactly right interpretation upon what Washington said, the interpretation that is inevitable if you read what he said, as most of these gentlemen do not. And the thing that he longed for was just what we are now about to supply: an arrangement which will disentangle all the alliances in the world.

Sees All Alliances Disentangled.

Nothing entangles, nothing enmeshes a man except a selfish combination with somebody else. Nothing entangles a nation, hampers it, binds it, except to enter into a combination with some other nation against the other nations of the world. And this great disentanglement of all alliances is now to be accomplished by this covenant, because one of the covenants is that no nation shall enter into any relationship with another nation inconsistent with the covenants of the League of Nations. Nations promise not to have alliances. Nations promise not to make combinations against each other. Nations agree that there shall be but one combination, and that is the combination of all against the wrongdoer.

And so I am going back to my task on the other side with renewed vigor. I had not forgotten what the spirit of the American people is, but I have been immensely refreshed by coming in contact with it again. I did not know how good home felt until I got here.

The only place a man can feel at home is where nothing has to be explained to him. Nothing has to be explained to me in America, least of all the sentiment of the American people. I mean about great fundamental things like this. There are many differences of judgment as to policy—and perfectly legitimate—sometimes profound differences of judgment; but those are not differences of sentiment, those are not differences of purpose, those are not differences of ideals. And the advantage of not having to have anything explained to you is that you recognize a wrong explanation when you hear it.

In a certain rather abandoned part of the frontier at one time it was said they found a man who told the truth; he was not found telling it, but he could tell it when he heard it. And I think I am in that situation with regard to some of the criticisms I have heard. They do not make any impression on me, because I know there is no medium that will transmit them, that the sentiment of the country is proof against such narrowness and such selfishness as that. I commend these gentlemen to communion with their fellow citizens.

Confident of the Future.

What are we to say, then, as to the future? I think, my fellow citizens, that we can look forward to it with great confidence. I have heard cheering news since I came to this side of the water about the progress that is being made in Paris toward the discussion and clarification of a great many difficult matters and I believe that settlements will begin to be made rather rapidly from this time on at those conferences. But what I believe—what I know as well as believe, is this: That the men engaged in those conferences are gathering heart as they go, not losing it: that they are finding community of purpose and community of ideal to an extent that perhaps they did not expect: and that amidst all the inter-play of influence—because it is infinitely complicated—amidst all the inter-play of influence, there is a forward movement which is running toward the right. Men have at last perceived that the only permanent thing in the world is the right, and that a wrong settlement is bound to be a temporary settlement—bound to be a temporary settlement for the very best reason of all, that it ought to be a temporary settlement, and the spirits of men will rebel against it, and the spirits of men are now in the saddle.

When I was in Italy a little limping group of wounded Italian soldiers sought an interview with me. I could not conjecture what it was they were going to say to me, and with the greatest simplicity, with a touching simplicity, they presented me with a petition in favor of the League of Nations. Their wounded limbs, their impaired vitality were the only argument they brought with them. It was a simple request that I lend all the influence that I might happen to have to relieve future generations of the sacrifices that they had been obliged to make. That appeal has remained in my mind as I have ridden along the streets in European capitals and heard cries of the crowd, cries for the League of Nations, from lips of people who, I venture to say, had no particular notion of how it was to be done, who were not ready to propose a plan for a League of Nations, but whose hearts said that something by way of a combination of all men everywhere must come out of this. As we drove along country roads weak old women would come out and hold flowers up to us. Why should they hold flowers up to strangers from across the Atlantic? Only because they believed that we were the messengers of friendship and of hope, and these flowers were their humble offerings of gratitude that friends from so great a distance should have brought them so great a hope.

It is inconceivable that we should disappoint them, and we shall not. The day will come when men in America will look back with swelling hearts and rising pride that they should have been privileged to make the sacrifice which it was necessary to make in order to combine their might and their moral power with the cause of justice for men of every kind everywhere.

God give us the strength and vision to do it wisely! God give us the privilege of knowing that we did it without counting the cost and because we were true Americans, lovers of liberty and of the right!

DRUGGISTS: VICK'S VAPORUB SHORTAGE OVERCOME AT LAST

The Deal Scheduled for Last November, Which Was Postponed on Account of the Influenza Epidemic, Is Now Reinstated—Good During the Month of March.

OVER ONE MILLION JARS OF VAPORUB PRODUCED EACH WEEK.

It is with pride that we announce to the drug trade that the shortage of Vick's VapoRub, which has lasted since last October, is now overcome. Since January 1st, we have been running our laboratory twenty-three and a half hours out of every twenty-four. Last week we shipped the last of our back orders, and retail druggists, therefore, are no longer requested to order in small quantities only.

NOVEMBER DEAL RE-INSTATED.

This deal, which we had expected to put on last November and which had to be postponed on account of the shortage of VapoRub, is re-instated for the month of March. This allows a discount of 10% on shipments from jobbers' stock of quantities of from 1 to 4 gross. 5% of this discount is allowed by the jobber and 5% by us.

We advise the retail druggists to place their orders immediately, so that the jobbers will be able to get prompt shipments to them.

THANKS OF THE PUBLIC DUE THE DRUG TRADE DURING THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC

The thanks of the American public are certainly due the entire drug trade—retail, wholesale and manufacturing—for what they accomplished during the recent influenza epidemic. The war caused a shortage of physicians—nurses were almost impossible to obtain—the demand on the drug trade was unexpected and overwhelming, and to this demand they responded nobly. Retail druggists kept open day and night and slept where they dropped behind the prescription counter. Wholesale druggists called their salesmen off the road to help fill orders—hundreds wired us to ship Vick's VapoRub by the quickest route, regardless of expense.

A TREMENDOUS JOB TO INCREASE OUR PRODUCTION.

In this emergency we have tried to do our part. We scoured the country for raw materials—our Traffic Manager spent his days riding freight cars in—we shipped raw materials in carload lots by express and pleaded with manufacturers to increase their deliveries to us.

But it was a slow process. Some of our raw materials are produced only in Japan—supplies in this country were low and shipments required three months to come from the Far East. Then we had to recruit and train skilled labor. We brought our salesmen into the factory and trained them as foremen. We invented new machinery, and managed to install it on Christmas Day, so as not to interfere with our daily production.

143 JARS OF VAPORUB EVERY MINUTE DAY AND NIGHT.

By January 1st we had everything ready to put on our night shift, and since then our laboratory has been running day and night. To feed our automatic machines, which drop out one hundred and forty-three jars of VapoRub a minute or one million and eighty thousand weekly, has required a force of 500 people. Our Cafe Department, created for the benefit of these workers, served 7,000 meals during the month of January alone.

13 MILLION JARS OF VAPORUB DISTRIBUTED SINCE OCTOBER.

An idea of the work we have accomplished this Fall may be given by our production figures—13,028,976 jars of VapoRub manufactured and distributed since last October—one jar for every two families in the entire United States.

During the influenza epidemic, Vick's VapoRub was used as an external application in connection with the physician's treatment, and thousands of people, unable to obtain a doctor, relied on Vick's almost exclusively.

Literally millions of families all over the country, from California to Maine, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, have found Vick's VapoRub the ideal home remedy for croup and cold troubles.

—a delicious food, rich in energy values including those vital mineral elements so essential to health and vigor.

"There's a Reason"

The Invisible Conflict

From the moment of birth—and before—until the hour of death, there is going on within the body a constant conflict, unseen and usually unfelt, between forces that seek to defend, and others that strive to destroy.

Germs that enter from without are attacked and destroyed by the living guardians in the blood, the white blood cells or phagocytes. Poisons generated within seek entrance into the blood and are removed or destroyed by the functions of the intestines, liver and kidneys.

Food waste allowed to stagnate and remain in the intestines, unevacuated, poisons the blood and destroys its power to defend against outside or inside enemies. Such self-poisoning causes over 90% of human illness.

Constipation turns the tide of the invisible conflict against the body, in favor of the invaders. Nor does the taking of castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., to force the bowels to move enable the body to defend itself. Not only will the constipation grow worse with the continuance of such remedies but the dose must be constantly increased with an ever-weakening effect.

On the other hand Nujol overcomes constipation and brings about the habit of easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals, because Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug. Nujol brings about a return to Nature's methods by supplying necessary lubrication of the bowel contents, by facilitating intestinal muscular action, by absorbing poisonous matter, and thus securing necessary cleansing of the intestinal canal and protection of the defensive properties of the blood itself.

Race to the North Pole.

It seems that Captain Bartlett is not going to have things entirely his own way in his airplane expedition to the north pole, for at the present moment the British are also planning for a similar undertaking. So the airplane expedition may take on the complexion of a sportsmanlike race, with the Americans represented by Captain Bartlett and the British by Salisbury Jones of the British Northern Exploration company. Captain Bartlett contemplates going to the far north by way of north Greenland, while Mr. Jones is going by way of Spitzbergen; which, when reduced to mathematics, means that the Americans will have some two thousand miles to go while our British cousins will have only nine hundred miles of journey. Mr. Jones believes that his expedition can make the flight in about nine hours.—Scientific American.

Morale.

Perhaps the simplest way of explaining the meaning of morale is to say that what "condition" is to the athlete's body, morale is to the mind. Morale is condition; good morale is good condition of the inner man; it is the state of will in which you can get most from the machinery, deliver blows with the greatest effect, take blows with the least depression, and hold out for the longest time. It is both fighting power and staying power, and strength to resist the mental infections which fear, discouragement and fatigue bring with them—such as eagerness for any kind of peace if only it gives momentary relief, or the irritability that sees large the defects in one's own side until they seem more important than the need of defeating the enemy. And it is the perpetual ability to come back.—William Ernest Hocking in the Atlantic Monthly.

OF INTEREST TO THE BOY SCOUT

Wednesday at 4 o'clock there will be a rehearsal of the fifers of the Scout Drum Corps. We are not pleased with the attendance of the drummers' rehearsal which was held Tuesday at 4 o'clock. There will be a rehearsal of the drummers again on Friday at 4 o'clock. This will be the last chance for the drummers to redeem themselves for after this rehearsal the drums will be recorded and the names of the Scouts who play them will be recorded also. There will also be another rehearsal of the fifers on Thursday at 4 o'clock. This will also be the last chance for the fifers for the same reason as the drummers. Don't be late as the drums and fifes are given out at the time set for the rehearsal and those who are late will be merely onlookers.

There has been two Scouts dropped for smoking cigarettes—one permanently and the other for probation of one month. This is not the first time this has been spoken of but we hope that it will be the last.

There will be a hike for Troop No. 5 to the foot-hills this Saturday. The executive will accompany the scouts so that tests may be given. Let's see how many of the scouts of Troop No. 5 will come back from the hike having passed two or more tests. There has not been a scout advanced to either second or first class within three months and it is getting to be a slow troop.

Here is a first aid hint for the First Aid Patrols of the different troops. (This will also be an excellent hint for the scouts who are not in these):

There are dopes and salves and plasters
For cure of all disasters.
There are cures for everything from love to sin;
There are formulas compounded
For most any way you're wounded
But the only cure for trouble is a grin.

If you all follow this "Hint" we are certain that you will get along better than you have formerly.

Troop No. 1 has not yet fulfilled its New Year's resolution of becoming a First Class troop. It is time that the fellows awaken and get busy. More members could be used to a good advantage.

Troop No. 4 held its meeting last Friday night. The meeting was conducted by Bertram Margolis. At the meeting they decided to build a trek cart. We hope that the cart will be used to a good advantage and that it will be built sooner than the trek cart of Troop No. Five's.

The weekly meeting of Troop No. 5 was held Tuesday evening at 7:30. Fred Scott and Roger Scott were appointed a committee on building a trek cart. Next Tuesday night after the business meeting there will be a short meeting of the first aid patrol. Next meeting is absolutely the last day for registration and all Scouts who have not paid will be dropped.

ONLY A LITTLE KEY

But It Made Much Trouble for New York Jeweler.

He Had Two Nights and One Day of Great Discomfort Chalked Up to the "Depravity of Inanimate Things."

"It is the little things in life that cause most of the trouble."

This wise saying of the ancient philosopher was strikingly illustrated a few nights ago in New York city when the proprietor of a jewelry store in closing up for the night broke a key in the lock of the street door.

Here are some of the things that happened then: The shopkeeper tried in every possible way to lock the door or get the broken key out. His efforts were fruitless. All the help had gone home and he had no one to send for a locksmith. He couldn't leave the store alone. He was so excited that for a long time he couldn't think of anything to do. Finally he went to the telephone and called up his home. His wife answered and he stammeringly asked her to come down at once. She couldn't make out what the trouble was, but caught "key," "lock" and "door," and suspecting a burglary she flung on her street clothes any old way and hastened downtown, half distracted.

In the meantime the husband began to telephone for a locksmith. A succession of "won't answers" from the telephone girl was all the satisfaction he got. When his wife arrived he left her in the store while he went out to try his luck. He tramped around for an hour or more, but was as unsuccessful as he had been on the telephone.

When he got back he telephoned to police headquarters and two policemen were sent to the store. He insisted that they remain outside to watch the place. He suggested to his wife that they go home, but she refused. She wouldn't think of leaving the place, even with the policemen outside. So the jeweler was forced to remain with her. About three o'clock in the morning he went out to an all-night lunch room and brought back some food. He waited eagerly for morning to come, when he would be able to get a locksmith. But he had forgotten that it was Sunday, and when he started out again on his quest it was only to meet with another disappointment. Despite all his efforts he couldn't connect with a locksmith.

He and his wife passed Sunday in the store, taking turns napping. The policemen on guard outside were relieved, but there was no relief for the jeweler from his weary vigil. He never welcomed a Monday morning more than he did the one that followed when assistants appeared and he and his wife were able to go home with the assurance that a locksmith would soon be around.

LUBRICATION IS BIG REQUISITE

Much More Liable to Be Neglected in Winter Than When Weather Is Pleasant.

MEANS LONG LIFE TO CAR

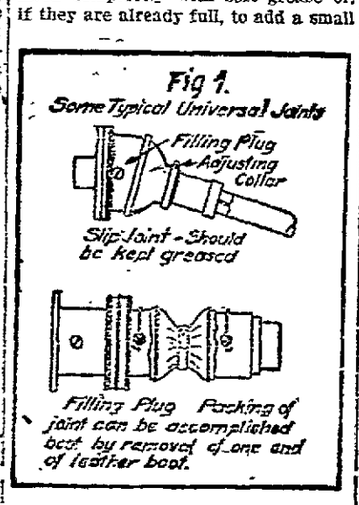
Advisable in Cold Weather to Have Universal Joints Filled With Soft Grease, or Add Small Amount of Heavy Oil.

(By R. A. LEAVELL, Department of Engineering Extension, Iowa State College.)

In the winter, when the garage is cold, systematic lubrication of the car, as recommended by the manufacturer in his instruction book, is very much more liable to be neglected than it is when the weather is pleasant. In addition, under the influence of cold, it is more difficult to get the oil to flow from the oil can into the oil cups or to force grease in by means of a grease cup.

When the car is run, the oil or grease, because it is stiffened by the cold, does not work in between the wearing surfaces so readily. A universal joint in particular may be partly filled with cup grease which is soft enough to lubricate properly in the summer, but which, like butter, becomes almost solid in zero weather.

During cold weather it is advisable to have the universal joint housings filled completely with soft grease or, if they are already full, to add a small amount of very heavy oil, like steam cylinder stock, which will insure lubrication even when the joints are cold.



Typical Universal Joints.

Fig. 1 shows two typical universal joints. In the first one the grease can be retained in the metal housing only if the adjusting collar is taken up occasionally to prevent leakage past the packing in the spherical joint in the housing.

If the transmission or gear box is lubricated with grease, unless it is especially light, it should be slightly thinned down in the winter so that it will be in a semifluid state rather than so solid that the gears will cut tracks and receive insufficient lubrication. There should be enough grease in the case so that all the gears on the lower shaft will dip in it and will carry it up between their teeth.

The differential, if lubricated with heavy oil or with light grease, should have enough so that the ring gear will dip to a depth of an inch or an inch and a half, but should not be filled more than one-third full on account of the liability of having the grease work out along the shafts and onto the brakes and tires.

If a heavy dark green oil, known often as steam cylinder stock, as 600-W, or as transmission oil, is used it will be found advisable to thin it down slightly in zero weather by the addition of automobile engine oil.

Mud Absorbs Oil.

Whenever mud gathers around the bearings and dries it absorbs oil just as sawdust or a sponge would, and if the oiling is not taken care of frequently enough the parts will first become dry, then water will soak in and cause rusting, and, finally, they will freeze fast and become almost immovable. This often happens on shafts in the brake-operating mechanism.

Proper lubrication in accordance with recommendations of the manufacturer found in the lubrication chart in the instruction book which he furnishes with the car, will make a difference of 10,000 miles between a car which is ready for the junk heap and the one which runs just as well as it did on its first trip.

ADJUSTMENT OF CARBURETOR

Modern Automatic Device Is Reliable and Accurate—Too Thin Mixture Causes Trouble.

(By HENRY L. THOMPSON, Department of Farm Engineering, Oklahoma A. and M. College.)

Nine-tenths of all the peculiarities of the gas engine are attributed to the carburetor. Some men have the habit of tinkering with it all the time.

The modern automatic carburetor is a very reliable and accurate machine, and when correctly adjusted to meet certain conditions it should operate in a satisfactory manner.

Most carburetors have an adjustment for low speed and starting, and another adjustment for high speeds.

Too thin a mixture causes the engine to pop and miss, while too thick a mixture will cause black at the muffler. Blue smoke is due to oil.

First adjust the engine for low speed so that it will start easily and pull strongly. Then run the motor at a medium to high speed under same load and adjust the "air" or high speed adjustment.

In an auto this may be done by running the machine up a long, regular grade on which it can make about 25 or 30 miles an hour, finding the adjustment which will give a certain speed with least throttle. In a tractor the carburetor should always be adjusted under load so that it pulls a given load the easiest. After the proper adjustment has been found leave it alone.

CHAINS SHOULD BE CLEANED

First Soak in Bath of Kerosene and Then Brush Off to Get Rid of All Dirt and Grit.

The silent chains that are becoming popular for cam shaft and other drives should be thoroughly cleaned every time the motor is taken down. The chain should first be soaked in a bath of kerosene and then brushed with a stiff brush to get off all dirt and grit. After cleaning, the chain should be dried and then washed in hot water, to which a little washing soda has been added. Next the chain should be submerged in a bath of moderately heavy lubricating oil and allowed to remain until the lubricant has reached every cranny of the bearing surface. It is a good idea to have this oil warmed through before immersing the chain in it, as this thins it a little and permits it more readily to reach hidden surfaces.

Elegant English.

A woman was one day writing an excuse because she had been slow in answering a letter. She said: "I would have written before, but I have been sick with a dog bite in the arm. The man that owns the sawmill's dog bit me on the road." The excuse was accepted. Her composition sounds very much like that of a small boy who tried to explain to a fellow swimmer the best way to get rid of water in his ears. He saw how uncomfortable the man was and called to him in a friendly way: "Hey, mister, hop on the leg that the cat's got the water in."

CHANCE FOR COAL EXCHANGE

Britain Has Too Much Anthracite and New York Has a Surplus of Bituminous.

In England the coal controller is trying to induce the people to burn anthracite in place of bituminous coal. He offers to exchange two tons of large anthracite for every ton of bituminous coal that consumers have on hand. In the eastern United States the fuel administration has been trying to get consumers to use bituminous coal in place of anthracite. Welsh anthracite mines are operating on part time, while English and Welsh bituminous coal mines are working overtime, says the New York Commercial.

This would be a fine chance for exchange of products if shipping were available, and it soon will be. New York city needs anthracite and can get a surplus of bituminous coal. England needs the latter and can spare the former. In England most of the people do not know how to burn anthracite. New Yorkers are ignorant of the way to use bituminous coal. The English persist in using open grates for heating rooms, and find it hard to make anthracite burn in them. In New York the open grate is found only in the homes of the wealthy. England shivers with plenty of anthracite in sight, while New York is threatened with a famine of domestic sizes of anthracite. Each regards the other as pig-headed because neither knows how to use the fuel available. It's an odd world.

"De Levee Am Bust."

There is the story of the Mississippi draft of cotton plantation negroes, brought up from camp by rail to Newport News and loaded on board the transport after dark. Next morning, when the troops woke up, the ship was well out to sea, and there was not a sign of land to be seen. One negro soldier, who had never seen or heard of the ocean, leaned against the rail and looked at the vast stretch of water. "Oh, Lawd," he ejaculated, "de levee am bust."

WELCOME DEATH'S COLD HAND

Little Wonder That Men Who Realize Their Appalling Loneliness Should End It All.

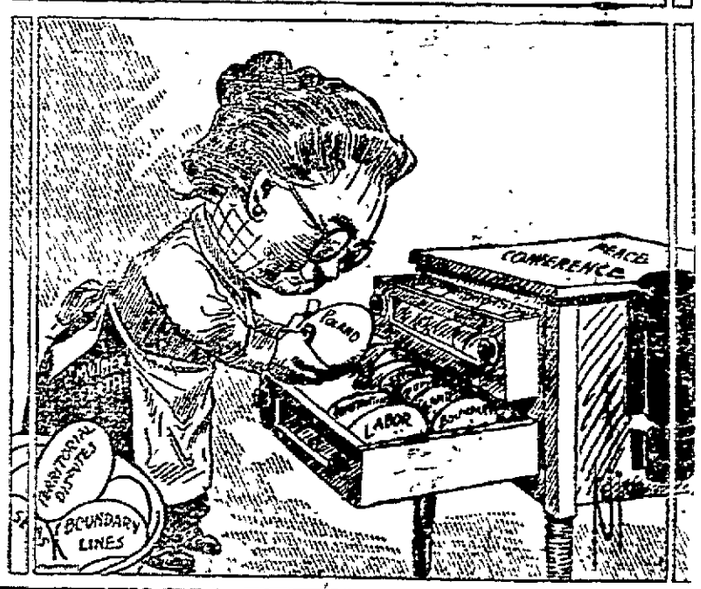
Alone. Not a living soul near to whom to speak. Forsaken it seems almost by God, whose presence scarce can penetrate the confused jangle of the city slums. Alone and penniless, with none to know or care. It is a harder lot by far than death. What wonder that men die?

Alone—with bitter thoughts of failure crowding through the interstices of a sluggish brain. Alone with not even two coins to rub in warming friction, clammy hands thrust into empty pockets. It is hard to live and doubly hard to die. What wonder that men kill that breathing, pulsing thing within we call life? What wonder that men pass by their own hand from living death to deathless living? They come and stay with us a while—and pass, defying God and man, themselves defied. And only they whose hearts beat with a richer, warmer, redder blood will understand.—Milwaukee Journal.

Patti's Beauty Vanishes.

According to a writer in Everybody's Magazine, "Patti lives, not only in our hearts, but really, in the flesh, at the age of seventy-six, in her magnificent castle of Craig-y-Nos, ten miles north of Swansea, in South Wales, on which she has spent quite half a million. She lives there with her third husband, Baron Cederstrom, and sometimes, when they feel inclined, they throw open their theater, a replica of the Baireuth theater, to the countryside and give one of the operas in which Patti once thrilled the world. Until recently Patti was even sometimes prevailed upon to appear at Albert hall in London for the benefit of some charity, but her beauty is quite gone—it vanished far earlier than her voice—and so for the most part she is happiest in her Welsh fastnesses among the neighbors, who will always call her the 'Queen of Wales.'"

To Be Hatched Out



Why They Were Laughing.

While the residents of the riverside, in the neighborhood of Claremont, were talking of the daylight-saving edict one day, and asked one another seriously if it would be really and truly patriotic to go for the morning canter on the bridle path an hour earlier, some one noticed a little group of persons, evidently from out of town, standing around a lump post near the approach of Grant's tomb and inspecting the post rather curiously. "Now, I wonder what they can be looking at, or looking for?" asked one of the habitues of the Claremont, a woman in riding habit, who had just returned from her recreation. Her companion took out his watch and observed that it was exactly 25 minutes to noon. "Yes," said the horsewoman, "25 minutes to 12, you are right with the clock in the cupola of the ferry house. But what has that to do with these people?" "Nothing unusual about this," said she laughing, "but it explains the strange conduct of these people. No doubt they are wondering how we do it and why we do it."—New York Times.

Why Celluloid Collar Is Back.

It has remained for the drastic need of war economy to bring the celluloid collar to a high degree of serviceability and good looks. A flexible, fine cotton fabric collar, so treated with a celluloid preparation as to look exactly like the standard linen and whose life is from one to two months, has been produced.

This collar may be worn all day, dipped in hot or cold water at night, cleaned with a damp towel and quickly dried, ready to be worn the next morning, as fresh and white as the day it came out of the collar box.

The insistent demand from army and navy officers for a dress collar which will have a dull, refined fabric finish of linen and yet stand unflinchingly under war service on parade, in automobiles and in the trenches, has made such collars popular.

Long Mountain Range.

Sumatra is of volcanic origin, and, together with the other members of the Malay group, formed in an early period of the world a part of the Asiatic continent. The Barisons, or Sumatra Alps, form a broken chain of mountains, running lengthwise of the island. Some of the highest points of the chain are 10,000 and 12,000 feet above the level of the sea.—Rocky Mountain Herald.

Wisdom of the Ancients.

It is my custom every night to run all over the words and actions of the past day; for why should I fear the sight of my errors when I can admonish and forgive myself? I was a little too hot in such a dispute; my opinion might as well have been spared, for it gave offense and did no good at all. The thing was true; but all truths are not to be spoken at all times.—Seneca.

Not a Bad Old Custom.

Until recent years there was a most respectable old inn in Warwickshire, England, the proprietor of which was accustomed to invite all his patrons to accompany him and his wife Sunday mornings to a church directly opposite the inn. On returning from service each customer was expected to partake of refreshments offered by the hospitable landlord free of charge.

Everybody get in line for the "Colored Jubilee" concert this evening in Pythian Hall. This is something altogether new for Port Ewen so come out and hear real singing by the color that sings. This entertainment is given under the auspices of the officials of the Methodist Church. Admission for adults 25 cents. Children under ten years 15 cents.

Relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Diehl in Sleightsburgh Sunday afternoon, March 3rd, to welcome and honor their son, Lester C. Diehl and nephew, Joe E. Sills, who have recently arrived from overseas doing their bit for Uncle Sam; both young men are enjoying a short furlough and are still in a hospital recovering from wounds. Their many friends were pleased to see them. Among the out of town people were Mr. and Mrs. M. Sills of Poughkeepsie, Mrs M Welsch and daughter, Eva of Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Diehl of New York city, Miss Jane Doyle and the Misses Bertha, Elsie and Alma Burger of Kingston

People of Port Ewen will remember the prayer service in the Methodist Church on Thursday evening. The service will be in charge of the East Side committee Every one is most cordially invited to come and enjoy a good time and a profitable time at this meeting

The following attended the Methodists Men's dinner at the Kingston Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening, Harry Mabie, Wallace C. Mabie, George W. Shultis, Peter Atkins, Samuel P. Tinnie, James Tinnie, Jr., Elmer Hutchings and Rev Eugene A. Bookhout. All report a fine and profitable time, a very cordial reception, good dinner, good singing led by W. N. Searles, the campaign manager and the addresses by Mayor Canfield and Dr. Bell, and by Bruce Baxter, one of the leaders of the centenary movement; were very interesting and will long be remembered and all join in hearty praise of the occasion.

There were two large congregations present at the Reformed Church last Sunday. The morning service was a communion service A new plan was adopted at this service, which made it a very impressive service. At the evening service the beautiful colored pictures of Japan were shown and a very interesting lecture by the pastor on Japan was given These pictures are shown in the interest of missions of the Reformed Church and judging from the large congregations present and the interest shown they are a success.

New Enemy of the Oak.

Reports of the defoliation of various species of oak have come into the forest service offices from western Washington, the Rogue River valley and the Willamette valley, according to District Forester Cecil.

This defoliation has been caused by a caterpillar known as the western oak looper worm, which operates from Oregon to British Columbia, and which has been known to defoliate the oak in certain areas for several years in succession. Successful methods of controlling this caterpillar have been devised by the bureau of entomology.

Watch for Airquakes.

An English astronomer of prominence has advanced the theory that there are airquakes, entirely independent of earthquakes, that are caused by the explosion of meteors in the atmosphere.

New Botanical Specimen.

Hazel (aged four), seeing a gentleman with a large chrysanthemum in his button hole passing by, exclaimed, "Oh, mamma, look what a large Christmas anthem that man's got."

Vice of the Virtuous.

The peculiarity of ill-temper is that it is the vice of the virtuous. It is often the one blot on an otherwise noble character.

HOUNDS COULD NOT FORGET

Faithful Animals Long Remembered Young Master Who Met Tragic Death a Year Ago.

It has often been said that a "dog is a man's best friend." This has certainly proved true in the case of Johnny Ingram, a fifteen-year-old boy, who froze to death during the big snowstorm about a year ago on the banks of Spring river, says a Stillwater (Okla.) dispatch.

When the body of the unfortunate boy was found two large greyhounds sat shivering in the snow guarding their young master's remains from wolves and other wild beasts.

After the boy's burial the two faithful hounds would make almost daily trips out to the cemetery and sit for hours at his grave. On these days they would not partake of a bite to eat until they returned to the Ingram home.

Many have followed the dogs to the cemetery out of curiosity to see what they would do. They were often found lying there, one on each side of the grave, their heads between their paws, as if in silent prayer.

Last summer the dogs were seen to gather wild pansies and violets in their mouths and trot off toward the cemetery, where they would deposit the flowers upon the boy's grave. These flowers were favorites with the lad. About a month ago the two dogs appeared to be sick.

A veterinary surgeon was called from Stillwater, but after examining the dogs he declared that he could find nothing wrong with them. However, they still refused to eat and finally disappeared.

NO THOUGHT OF GRATITUDE

Hungry School Teacher Unfortunately Had "Cast Bread Upon the Waters" in Vain.

Two Hoosier teachers were traveling through Canada the other day. They had to take a very early train, and as a result intended to eat breakfast in the dining car. But there was no dining car on the train. Hungrily they faced the prospect of a day of fasting, for they would not arrive at their destination until late afternoon. "We have just two cakes of chocolate," said one, taking store of their possessions. "Will you eat yours now or wait a while?"

The second ate her cake then, trusting to luck to find a station lunchroom. But the first waited until noon and until a mother and two small children had settled themselves in the seat opposite the teachers.

Finally she took the cake of chocolate, eyed it in happy anticipation and then unwrapped it. But lo, the two youngsters were against her knee, and they, too, were looking at it with happy anticipation. Of course it was divided between them.

Half an hour later the mother opened her grip and out came the family lunch of fried chicken, sandwiches, etc. But not one bite did the generous teacher get "What was that about a cup of cold water?" she asked the other teacher hintingly.

The woman with the full basket stared at her coldly. Then she took a drinking cup from her grip and extended it. "You may have it," she offered, "but there's paper cups at the can."—Indianapolis News.

His Narrow Escapes.

"Uh—well, sah, I's back f'um wanderin' all over de face o' creation," said Brother Shook, who had been absent for some time. "When muh yallah wife run off wid dat gamblin' man I quit home, and I's been on de gad ever since."

"Did yo' kotch up wid 'em?" asked Brother Bohshy.

"Did I kotch up wid 'em? Man, dey kept kotchin' up wid me, de best I could do. When dat scoun'el stole muh wife I left so's I wouldn't be yuh when he brung her back. And, bless goodness, everywhuhs I went dar dey was, twell it got to be like a bad dream. But de white folks finally slapped de gamblin' man in jail and muh wife's fust husband come along and she took up wid him. And I comes smilin' home to peace and happiness."—Kansas City Star.

His Manner Imperfect.

"I knows a janitor," said Uncle Eben, "dat wishes folks 'Happy New Year' in a way dat don't make 'em any happier dan if he was a bill collector."

MARY'S STRATEGY

By CHRISTINE HAYES.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Congratulate me!" chanted Mary S. from the doorway. And the family paused in its various occupations, a warm interest in each other's affairs being characteristic of it.

"You don't mean that Jack's aunt has come to her senses?" demanded Arline.

"No," Mary replied cheerfully. "I simply mean that she's going to."

"What!" exclaimed the entire group.

"Yes," said Mary, dropping into the morris chair and unfolding the newspaper she had been waving. "Listen to this:

"'WANTED—Companion. Must be ladylike and congenial. Musical education preferred. Agreeable speaking voice required. Apply Tuesday after three.

"'MISS LUCRETIA B., 25 —— Road.'"

"Interesting," admitted Tom; "but I don't quite see the connection."

"Well, Mr. S.," began Mary elaborately, "I trust that you are familiar with the synopsis—namely, that Mr. Jack B., favorite nephew of the rich, but eccentric Miss Lucretia, is madly in love with one Mary S., but perversely refuses to marry her because she is endowed with more worldly goods than he. Miss Lucretia might easily remedy this deplorable state of affairs, but she has taken an unaccountable dislike to Mary S., whom she has never even seen, and vows to change her will if Jack marries her. You are, I presume, acquainted with these facts?"

"You just bet I am," returned Tom, with a comical air of patience; "but what has the ad to do with it?"

"Simply that if Aunt Lucretia were to really know me, I just know she'd love me," said Mary with mock complacency. "Furthermore, I think I'd make her an admirable companion. And," she finished seriously, "Jack has told me so much about her that I know I really will love her, so it won't be toadying. And, anyway, it isn't for the sake of the money. It's just that the assurance that he is heir to the filthy lucre will overcome Jack's scruples."

"Good girl!" cried Tom admiringly. "You'll do it, all right."

"Huh, that's just like you! Be perfectly lovely to her, after all the trouble she has caused you and Jack," Arline scolded.

"The truth is," replied Mary, "I think she worships Jack and is jealous at the thought of his marrying anyone. Of course," she laughed, "I can understand anyone's being jealous of Jack—and forgive it."

"I'm glad you feel that way, dear," said Mrs. S., "and I think perhaps your idea is a good one. Are you going to tell Jack now, or wait to see how things turn out?"

"Well, Jack is a dear, of course, but he's rather a worrier. Guess I'll wait. So long, folks. I'm off to prepare for the siege—clothes, and music, etc."

And a few minutes later her clear soprano floated down from the sewing room.

Whereat the family smiled to itself, for this was, inconsistently, the song of Mary's merriest mood, rendered with a trill that belied the text.

On the appointed Tuesday, there were several applicants, but Mary, neatly gowned, and with her unmistakable air of good breeding, was conspicuous among them. Miss Lucretia secretly loved golden hair, too, and Mary's hair was golden. She had always liked clear blue eyes, and Mary's eyes were clear and blue. Furthermore, Mary's musical talents were far above mediocrity, and her speaking voice, Miss Lucretia noted, was music in itself.

In short, the fastidious little old lady fell in love with the girl at first sight, and in the months that followed she did not regret it. Mary became her confidant, and in her turn became so much attached to Miss Lucretia that she concluded one of her letters home with a humorous: "I can't bear that Mary S."

To Miss Lucretia she was Mary C., and Jack's letters were forwarded to her from home under that name.

"My nephew Jack is coming home on leave, Mary," announced Miss Lucretia over her knitting one morning.

Mary already knew, but her heart skipped a beat at the thought of the surprise that awaited him, for she had not been blind to the purpose of Miss Lucretia's loud praises of her nephew, and knew that victory was assured.

The little old lady's sharp eyes noted Mary's heightened color approvingly, and she congratulated herself as a matchmaker.

"Jack may think he likes Mary S.," she purred inwardly, "but just wait till he sees my Mary."

A few days later Mary came upon them suddenly in the garden, Jack having arrived without her knowledge. He sprang to his feet, his face laughable in its astonishment.

"Mary! Why—why—Mary!" he stammered, then as the truth dawned upon him, laughed till the tears stood in his eyes.

And it was Miss Lucretia's turn to be astonished.

An Open Letter To The People of Kingston

D. W. GRIFFITH, of Los Angeles, California, has just completed arrangements with G. C. Gildersleeve of the Opera House, whereby Kingston is to be treated to one of the greatest events in the entire history of theatricals.

This will be the presentation here of Mr. Griffith's tremendous spectacle "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," the production which required more than eighteen months in the making, and in which one million men and women, and fifty thousand horses appear.

The engagement of "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" will begin on Wednesday, March 12, at 2:30, and will be shown twice on Wednesday and Thursday, at 2:30 and 8:15.

Some idea of the magnitude of Mr. Griffith's achievement may be gained from the fact that it was shown 528 times at the 44th Street Theatre and the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York City, and has been proclaimed by the most conservative critics a greater work than Mr. Griffith's former triumph, "The Birth of a Nation."

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD" is an old-fashioned play with a new fashioned theme, its delightful comedy and wholesome romance artistically blended with the greatest historical data of all times, wherein is shown all the important incidents in connection with the Victory of the American Forces in France and the places just visited by President Wilson—the greatest page in American History.

The advance sale of reserved seats for the engagement of "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" will open at the Opera House on Monday, March 10. The prices for the afternoon performances will be 25c and 50c, the evening prices from 50c to $1.00. There will be more than 300 seats 50c at the evening performances.

SHOTS FIRED AT POINCARE'S HOME

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, March 5.—Two shots were fired at President Poincare's official residence in the Champs d'Elysee today by a man who was afterward identified as a Russian.

After his arrest the man declared he had shot as a protest against Allied intervention in Russia.

LAST WITNESS IN GRENADE INQUEST

Conti Says Protested Lack of Safety at Port Ewen Plant in October, 1918, and Was Dismissed—Reported Falling Bouchons.

The last and only witness to appear in the grenade case was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Hasbrouck when the inquest convened at 1 o'clock in the court house today. Ottivioa Conti, who was discharged from the government employ at the plant more than one month prior to the explosion, testified that he had written a letter to the New York district office of the U. S. Ordnance Department, complaining of unsafe conditions at the plant in the month of October, 1918. Among the unsafe conditions that he claims existed in the old plant at that time were the lack of water for fire protection and first aid for injured. He also stated that he reported in this letter that he had at different times found no guards on duty at the magazines. Conti stated that this letter was written about the 7th day of October last year and that the following day he was suspended from duty by the New York office.

These complaints that the witness claims to have submitted did not pertain to the unit in which the explosion occurred because at that time the unit was not in operation. He said that he had no interest in the case whatever but while in the city on a case now in the term of supreme court he had heard comment to the effect that no reports had been testified to of any existing unsafe conditions at the plant. He also, according to his testimony, claimed that he had made reports to Chief Cochrane of the falling of trays of bouchons to the floor at different times in the old plant. All of these assertions made by Conti on the stand this morning refer to a time prior to the operation of the unit in which the fatal explosion occurred on November 8th last year and resulted in the deaths of three employes and the injuring of many.

The case was adjourned until Monday afternoon, March 17, when the remaining witnesses will sign their testimony so that Coroner Kelly may deliberate before giving his decision as to the cause of the explosion.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 5.—There was a generally heavy tone to the trading at the opening of the stock market today, especially in the railroad list. Declines in these issues, however, were confined to fractional limits with Reading falling ⅞ to 81½, Southern Railway, ⅞ to 27, and Chesapeake ½ to 57. Many other specialties were strong, with Hide & Leather Preferred advancing 3½ to a new high record of 101½. General Motors rose 1¼ to 156¼. United States Steel yielded ⅝ to 92¾. Baldwin dropped ⅞ to 78½ and Utah declined ¾ to 68¼. The tone at the end of the first half hour was steady.

The selling movement in the railroad stocks halted in the late forenoon when pronounced strength developed throughout the list, many issues moving up to new high records. The petroleum stocks were active, Mexican Petroleum moving up four points to 180½, and Pan-American, 1½, to 81⅜. United States Steel moved up 1 point to 93¾, and Baldwin rose to 79⅜. Central Leather rose ⅝ to 66⅜, and Distillers, after moving up ⅞ to 60⅛, reacted to 59. General Motors dropped from 156¼ to 153¼.

The market closed weak; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds weak.

Services at St. Mary's.

Lenten devotions will be held this evening in St. Mary's Church. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Joseph Kelly, S. J., of St. Andrew's College, Poughkeepsie. Distribution of the blessed ashes will take place after the service.

Where the Trouble Is.

If we cannot agree with our present co-workers or neighbors, making a change will in no way help to mend matters. It is almost a certainty that we shall find the new folks just like the persons we left behind us, as far as indifference and inconsideration are concerned. The trouble is with ourselves, and until we realize it and make an attempt to change our own unfortunate temperaments we will not be happy anywhere.

HOW MUCH NERVE HAS TO DO WITH THE SUCCESS OF THE FLYERS.

In speaking recently regarding the medical aspect of flying, Sir Watson Cheyne, the famous English doctor, among other interesting things states: "An important thing is the necessity of having true binocular vision, especially when traveling at a great speed, and of having a very rapid connection between the sight and the action; in fact, in selecting pilots, one of the most important points to ascertain is whether the binocular vision is good, and also the time it takes between the aviator seeing and taking action. Very often it has been discovered that one eye is not used at all. Many people are going about with one eye and are not using the binocular vision; that is an extremely dangerous thing. You could not allow a man to enter the air service unless you found he had proper binocular vision; otherwise he would kill himself and smash his machine." The statement, it is held by some, is a fallacy. The possession of nerve has more to do with the success of an aviator than mere physical strength or keen vision. Many first-class pilots have had sight and one at least has but one eye.—Scientific American.

'BLOOD THICKER THAN WATER'

Why Snappy Phrase Coined by American Captain Has Been Rendered Practically Immortal.

There are few phrases more deeply imbedded in the language of the people than "Blood is thicker than water." The man who coined it has just had a destroyer of the navy named after him—Captain Josiah Tatnall. Consequently, the Tatnall will always recall the phrase as much as the man who first used it. The story of the origin of the phrase is an old one and need not be repeated. One reflects, however, that phrase making in itself is by no means an exceptional gift enjoyed only by people of high station. Many humble folks are very clever at saying things pithily. An occasion of sufficient moment is necessary to enable a phrase to catch the public ear and usually such an occasion is the opportunity only of persons of high or temporarily important station. Captain Tatnall had one fleeting chance to say a great thing at the right moment, and so he enriched the language for all time.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

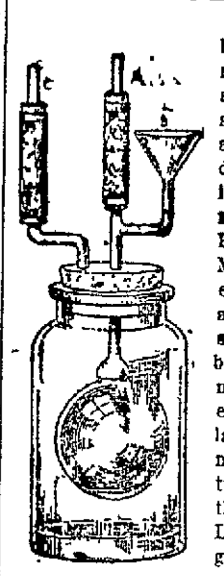
TO PROTECT SOAP BUBBLE

One May Be Made to Last for Weeks If Proper Precautions Are Taken.



Lasting soap bubbles cannot be made unless the air inside and outside the bubble is almost free of dust particles and is saturated with moisture, says Popular Science Monthly. Wherever you are the air is dust laden so that the whole blowing operation must be conducted inside of a large bottle. It is necessary to pass two glass tubes through the cork. Larger sections of glass tubes are placed as shown in the illustration. These inclose cotton wool filter. The air enters through the tube, A, the soapy water entering the by-pass tube, B, below the air filter. The other tube, C, is to allow the displaced air to leave the bottle. This tube also provides for air movements due to variations in temperature and barometric pressure. A small quantity of water, D, is placed in the bottom to keep the air moist.

Possibly.

A physician was giving an informal talk on physiology on the porch of a southern hotel.

"Also," he said, "it has lately been found that the human body contains sulphur."

"Sulphur!" exclaimed a girl in a blue-and-white blazer. "How much sulphur is there in a young girl's body?"

"Oh!" said the physician, smilingly, "that varies."

"And is that," asked the maiden, "why some of us make better matches than others?"

Mountain Sheep.

Fears are being expressed in British Columbia of the extinction of those already scarce and grand animals of the chase, the mountain sheep. Trophy hunters in increasing numbers take advantage of the open season in western states, and Canadian supplies suffer as a consequence.

It is suggested that a rigidly observed close season be maintained on both sides of the border for the next five years, and that only one head be allowed to each party of hunters for the future.

Butterbean Is Meal.

A meal for a whole family from one bean is possible now in California. The bean is called the Guinea butterbean, and one offered in the Los Angeles market was almost three feet long and nine inches in circumference. It is said to be excellent eating, similar to the eggplant.

Strength of Bone and Oak.

A very small bone, only one square millimeter—.0155 square inch—in diameter, will hold 33 pounds in suspension without breaking, while a piece of the best oak of the same thickness will hold up only 22 pounds.

Big Walnut Crop.

California's immense 1918 crop of walnuts is more than half harvested. It is now apparent that the present season will be the most satisfactory of any in the history of walnut growing in this state. The crop is the largest, and the quality and price the best ever known. The results of this year's campaign constitute a tremendous boost for co-operative walnut growing. From 65,000 acres the walnut growers will sell nine and a half million dollars worth of nuts.

RAFFERTY WON HOT POOL GAME

Four of the postponed games were played off in the K. of C. pool tournament last night. Brown defeated O'Connor in the first game very easily. N. D. J. Murphy also won his game, beating McCutcheon. The best game of the evening was when Rafferty and Barrett each needed one ball to take the honors, Rafferty winning when Barrett fouled.

The score:

First game—
M. Brown—5, 4, 11, 11, 8, 9, 11, 10, 9, 12; total, 90. Hc. 90. High run, 8.
J. O'Connor—5, 8, 3, 3, 5, 5, 2, 4, 2, 2; total, 39. Hc. 60. High run, 4.
Referee, P. McKeon; scorekeeper, E. Netter.

Second game—
N. D. J. Murphy—4, 4, 5, 8, 4, 6, 6, 9, 11, 3; total, 60. Hc. 60. High run, 6.
R. McCutcheon—5, 9, 7, 3, 10, 6, 8, 4, 3; total, 55. Hc. 80. High run, 8.
Referee, J. Fallon; scorekeeper, J. Martin.

Third game—
Geo. Rafferty—11, 11, 9, 5, 9, 8, 6, 4, 8, 7, 4, 4, 9; total, 95. Hc. 95. High run, 6.
Ed. Barrett—3, 2, 2, 8, 4, 3, 7, 6, 6, 7, 9, 9, 2; total, 68. Hc. 70. High run, 6.
Referee, M. Brown; scorekeeper, Ed. Netter.

Fourth game—
Ed. Gillen—11, 11, 9, 12, 9, 1, 3, 6, 12, 9, 11, 7, 1; total, 100. Hc. 100. High run, 11.
J. Connor—3, 3, 3, 2, 5, 11, 11, 7, 1, 5, 3, 6; total, 60. Hc. 70. High run, 6.
Referee, Leonard Kane; scorekeeper, C. Enright.

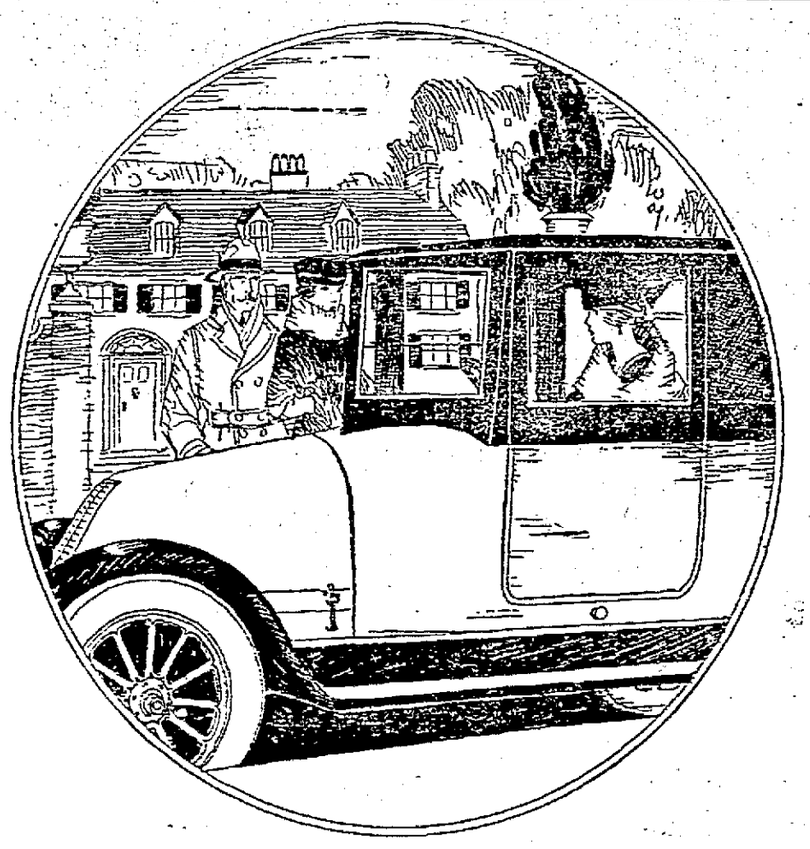
THE FRANKLIN SEDAN



Good Looks; Economy; Year-'Round Use

These are the three features of the Franklin Sedan directly responsible for its growing popularity.

One glance at this gracefully designed car makes the point of good looks immediately apparent.

Publicly known facts of Franklin Sedan performance—the consistent delivery of 18 to 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of the usual 8.

10,000 miles to the set of tires—instead of the usual 5,000.

—demonstrate its remarkable economy.

And the Franklin Sedan design—comfortably warm for winter running, cool and dustless for summer use—offers year-around usefulness, which is further enhanced by the Franklin Direct Air Cooling System. No water to boil in summer or to freeze in the radiator when cold weather comes.

On rough country roads, or in crowded city streets, the lightweight, flexible Franklin Sedan is as easily handled as a touring car.

A ride in the Franklin Sedan will demonstrate these features.

May we arrange it at your convenience?

DRESS WELL AND SAVE MONEY BY SHOPPING AT EIGHMEY'S

A McCall Pattern and a little work make your dress allowance go twice as far. Why not try it?

S. E. Eighmey

McCall Patterns are a boon to women who are confronted with dressmaking problems.

Home Dressmaking Inspired by McCall Patterns

You secure the leading styles—styles a step in advance of the day; you are sure of the honesty of the workmanship; you have a broad variety of fabrics to select from, and you employ your time interestingly and profitably.

Take Mc Call Pattern No. 8798, for example: Plain or tucked blouse; three-piece skirt, plain or trimmed with bias folds or braid, high waistline, like illustration.

Your pleasure in wearing such a dress will be greatly increased by the knowledge that your friends will "guess" it cost twice as much as it really did.
